U Thant Calls for Peace in Viet Nam

End 'Most Barbarous War'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant described the fighting in Viet Nam Monday as "one of the most barbarous wars in history" and he called for greater efforts to bring about a settlement.

"The longer we wait, the more difficult the situation becomes," he told the UN Correspondents' Association. "The situation is very urgent, very critical."

The secretary-general said he has made no new recent proposals to settle the Vietnamese crisis. He added, however, that his three-point plan for ending the conflict still is applicable.

They are:
● A cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

● A scaling down of all military activity in Viet Nam.

● A willingness by "all sides" actually participating in the fighting to enter into discussions.

"These steps alone can create conditions conducive to a peaceful solution of the Viet Nam problem," Thant said. "They still are as applicable to day as they were six months ago."

Turning to other topics, the secretary-general said he believes the United States and the Soviet Union soon will reach an agreement on procedures for the banning of the use of the moon and other celestial bodies for military purposes.

He is scheduled to visit Italy

De Gaulle Predicts:

France, Russia Will Lead Way

MOSCOW (Reuters) — French President Charles de Gaulle called Monday night for France and Russia to join together to break the "harmful spell" of rigid confrontation between East and West.

At the start of an historic 12-day visit, he said the two countries stood at the threshold of a "great opportunity" for working together towards European unity and security.

So long as Europe failed to move towards ending the continent's "sterile divisions," it is for France and Russia to start "doing it together from now on."

More co-operation between them should help Europe "to take to the road of union and the world that of equilibrium, progress and peace."

The French leader spoke at a lavish Kremlin banquet four hours after he drove through Moscow streets to a cheering but restrained welcome from several hundred thousand Russians waving paper French and Russian flags.

De Gaulle said that France, in spite of its strivings for a "productive Europe," in no way

Rebels Appeal For Aid

SAIGON (AP) — Embattled South Vietnamese Buddhist leaders, blockaded in a Saigon pagoda compound, appealed to the Red Cross Monday for help in a health situation they described as critical.

They reported one Buddhist had caught cholera, but the military government claimed a hospital examination showed no such symptoms.

PRESSURE FIRM
The Ky government, while maintaining firm pressures on the weakening Buddhist opposition, announced formally its plans for a national election in the fall to choose a constituent assembly and made official its intention to stay in power well into 1967.

It also eased its curfew on Vietnamese in Saigon and U.S. military authorities followed suit by relaxing restrictions on U.S. servicemen in the capital.

CURFEW TIGHT
A tight curfew had been imposed when Buddhists began a series of anti-government demonstrations that on numerous occasions erupted into violence on Saigon streets. In many cases, the demonstrations had strong anti-American overtones.

In the war, U.S. Coast Guard cutters intercepted and seized a blockade-running trawler. A U.S. spokesman said it was

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—A U.S. Marine attack bomber crashed in flames in a residential area in the vacation suburb of Buckroe Beach here Monday night after colliding with another military jet.

Hampton police said eight persons were killed and 45 others injured, some seriously, as the plane cut a swath through the area of modest two-bedroom, frame homes. Seventeen homes were demolished or damaged.

All the dead were occupants of houses in a development several blocks from a shopping centre—an area of two-bedroom houses some 3½ miles from the bay shore.

MARINES RESCUED
The four marines aboard the A-6 Intruder jet ejected from their aircraft and, along with one of the planes, came down in the bay near Norfolk. All were rescued.

Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said the attack bombers—A-6 Intruder jets—were on a flight from their base at Cherry Point, N.C., to Patuxent River, Md. Monday night on a chartered airliner after his Saudi Arabian Boeing jet was forced to land in Lisbon with engine trouble.

THROUGH ROOF
The aircraft apparently disintegrated as it fell. A wheel plunged through the roof of a bowling alley and injured three persons inside.

So great was the concussion when the attack bomber plunged into the housing development that goods were knocked from the shelves of a drugstore three or four blocks from the scene.

The fire from the plane apparently set a gas main ablaze. Three of the marines rescued in the Chesapeake Bay were rescued by coast guard helicopter. The other was picked up by a private boat.

King's Jet In Trouble

Handlers' Strike Grows

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike of freight handlers employed by the CNR and CPR spread Monday and paralysed all movement of freight between waterfront sheds and railway cars. Some 200 men, members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC), left their jobs Friday night. About 400 others joined the walkout Monday.

BETTER RATES
The walkout began a day after 3,500 longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec City returned to work following a 39-day strike. The men demand new contract provisions which would guarantee payment of time-and-a-half rates after 7 p.m. weekdays and Saturday and double time Sunday.

FULL APPROVAL
All sides of the Commons applauded the announcement. Russia has bought 478,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada since 1963. All sales have been for cash, on delivery. Some short-term credits have been given by the government for sales to East European countries.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons: "The impact of this record sale and the assurance it gives for the marketing of Canadian wheat and flour will extend throughout Canada and will be felt not only by wheat farmers and millers, but by grain handlers, longshoremen, elevator companies, railways, shipping companies and the economy generally."

Under a protocol to the new basic trade agreement, Canada and Russia also agreed to facilitate the exchange of visits for business purposes.

Wilson Hints Communists Prolong Seamen's Strike

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson strongly hinted Monday that Communist elements in the seamen's union are prolonging the British shipping strike in hope of damaging the country's economy. The strike is in its sixth week.

In a strongly worded statement to Parliament, Wilson didn't use the word Communist, but he spoke of "a tightly knit group of politically motivated men" — a reference London newspapers quickly took as meaning the Communists.

He said: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had their effect."

"They are endangering both the economy and the interests of the union."

Prospectors Found Safe

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — Two prospectors who attempted to hike out of dense bush and making country after the helicopter they were riding in crashed June 14, were picked up Monday. A para-rescue team found Andy Molony of Edmonton and Dick Wallingham of Maye, Y.T., "walking and apparently in good condition."

Wilson told the Commons that emergency plans are being made to use RAF transport planes, if necessary, to deliver important export shipments to North America and Western Europe.

He also was ready to use the RAF to carry mail to Northern Ireland and the Royal Navy to get supplies to outlying islands heavily dependent on coastal shipping.

But the effects of the strike had not been as great "as some had possibly hoped."

Wilson followed his statement by summoning union leader William Hogart, who is believed to be a moderate, to a meeting at 10 Downing Street.

Of the union executive he said: "My doubt is how far they are their own masters in taking decisions."

But support for the executive's stand came in from votes by seamen at six major ports, Southampton, Liverpool, Manchester, South Shields, Hull and Glasgow.

Talks Here Today

Solution Hunted In Ferry Dispute

The big question of what will happen next in the B.C. Ferries labour dispute was still unanswered Monday night, but moves were being made to bring some order to a confused situation.

Leaders of the employees will meet in Victoria this afternoon, and a spokesman said they were hopeful that further talks "to alleviate the situation" would be held with Attorney General Bonner, chairman of a special cabinet committee set up to deal with the dispute.

The employees are represented by the B.C. Ferry Authority Employees' Association. Meanwhile, an organization spokesman said no sudden walk-out was expected.

"Undoubtedly, our executive council will elect to notify the public well in advance, if any action is to be taken."

"Certainly our intention is not to inconvenience the public."

IWA Situation Stays Confused Despite Meetings

Despite union meetings held at the weekend, woodworkers on Vancouver Island have not come to any common agreement on whether they would return to work or not and the labor picture remains confused, with some working and some still on strike.

● In Victoria, the only woodworkers on strike—200 at Victoria Plywood Ltd.—returned to work at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

● In Port Alberni, if 300 men return to work today at MacMillan Bloedel's Sproat Lake operation, then all IWA members of Local 1-85 will be back at work.

● At Lake Cowichan the IWA has an unofficial strike headquarters in the Elks Hall and all major logging and mill operations are shut down.

● At Duncan, after a mass meeting Sunday, men from Hillcrest Lumber Company and B.C. Forest Products, Youbou, decided they would not go back to work.

IWA workers at other plants in the Duncan area were undecided on whether to work or not.

● In the Campbell River area, 130 loggers at Camp Five went out on strike when a dispute arose over marshalling points and a portal-to-portal pay dispute.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan local, 1-80, is in Vancouver at emergency meetings of the IWA's negotiating committee.

A report from Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, who was appointed industrial conciliator in the dispute between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., which negotiates for 120 companies, will be handed down "as expeditiously as possible," the justice said Monday.

Despite the confused situation, Mr. Justice Nemetz said he would not ask for an extension in the time allowed for bringing in his report.

Canada, Russia Sign New Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sold 336,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia on a three-year contract for $800,000,000 cash. Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday.

(See Page 5)
No intergovernmental credit arrangements are involved in the new sales, but Canada and the U.S.S.R. have extended their basic general agreement for another three years.

The trade agreement provides that the two countries accord each other "most favored nations" tariff treatment. That is, they agree to charge no higher rate of duty on imports from another country than they accord each other.

THIRD RENEWAL
The trade agreement runs to April 17, 1969, and is subject to further renewal by mutual consent. It is the third renewal of an agreement first entered into nine years ago.

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian wheat board will ship about 112,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour during the next crop year which begins Aug. 1.

Life of Ups, Downs

Home Winnie Loved Public Show

WESTERHAM, England (AP) — Winston Churchill once told his youngest daughter, Mary, that every day away from Chartwell was a wasted day.

Wednesday, the Kentish home he loved above any other corner of England becomes a public show. Thousands will tramp its velvet lawns, peep into the rooms he lived in, gaze at the towering wall he built with his own hands.

For Chartwell Manor has become the stuff of history and the world claims a right to see it.

Chartwell was bought in 1922 — "the year I was born," recalls Mary, wife of Conservative politician Christopher Soames. She was brought up at Chartwell and her three children were born there.

"Father fell in love with this valley in 1921," she said. "The house was small, poky, surrounded by laurels and full of stained glass. It was in a bad state, too."

"Mother didn't think much of it. In fact, she didn't really like it at all. But a year later father bought it. It was two years before we could move in, because he had started building."

"This was his home uninterrupted from 1924 until the Second World War. During the war years it was too dangerous — too near Biggin Hill fighter airfield — and he was mainly at Chequers (the official prime minister's residence). From 1945 he lived here again until just a few months before his death."

Thant, therefore, deferred at least until next month a promised announcement of his decision regarding a second five-year term as head of the world organization. He said he would rather wait until he returns from Europe before making a decision. His term expires in November.

Thant said he would be "very happy" if the UN Security Council appointed a new man as secretary-general.

Your Good Health

AA Reacts Best to Sincerity

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman of 46 and desperately seeking help. I am an alcoholic. Don't tell me to go to AA because that would mean exposing myself to my family. I would rather die.

I have tried many times on my own, but to no good. I have heard there is a potent drug that can help if the patient is willing and really wants to stop. Is this true? — MRS. M.

"AA" means Alcoholics Anonymous, and the "Anonymous" means just what it says. So I do not see why going to AA would expose your problem to your family.

I have discussed this with AA members, and one of the penetrating replies was, "And just how is she going to explain it to her family, anyway, when she is sober all the time?"

You see, secret alcoholics characteristically think they have everybody fooled. Drinkers who have been through the mill tell me this is very seldom true. Almost always it is a case of friends and family pretending they don't know, when they do. Therefore it may well be, Mrs. M., that exposing your problem to the family would be no surprise at all, and you would find only understanding and support in your determination to quit.

AA achieves its finest results with people who voluntarily and sincerely seek its help, and I think you genuinely want help. Why not try it?

However, in cities as big as yours, there are alcohol clinics doing excellent work. There is one where you live. It is also possible that the clinic could refer you to a private physician specializing in your problem.

Yes, there are potent drugs which make a person violently ill if alcohol is consumed. This sounds foolproof but it isn't. The flaw is that if a person really wants another drink, he always can find one way or another to stop taking the drug. The real cure lies deeper: Helping the patient develop a compelling desire to quit.

The drug, however, is useful in some cases, but it needs close supervision by a physician or clinic.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've been told that once a woman starts taking hormones, she has to continue them. Is this so? Will they make hair grow, or make her masculine? — D. F.

You have been misinformed. Hormones are helpful in getting a woman past the more annoying aspects of menopause, but there is no reason why they have to be continued indefinitely.

In the amounts prescribed for this purpose, as well as in the type of hormones used (largely estrogen or the "female hormone"), there is no acceleration of hair growth and certainly no masculinization.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a low white blood count — 3,000. Instead of 7,000. It is checked every month but it never gets any higher. Could you account for this? — MRS. W.

The white cell count normally ranges from 5,000 to 10,000. A

Hydro's Columbia Bills

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority said Monday it has almost $200,000,000 left over from the Columbia River project and still has almost $200,000,000 in cash.

Hydro's annual report said the authority made $22,626,121 in interest on the advance American payment of $273,291,661 from September, 1964, to March, 1966.

Of the total $295,917,782, $97,914,505 was spent on the Columbia project, $137,002,652 was invested in short-term

The report did not say what Montreal $26,885,000 at 5.4 per cent. The authority spent $69,828,000 on the Peace River project last year, bringing the total spent so far on that scheme to $147,459,931.

Of the $137,002,652 of the Columbia money invested in short-term notes, the province of Quebec got $60,000,000 at 5.05 per cent interest; the Kinross Mortgage Corp. $50,000,000 at 5.67 per cent and the Bank of

The report said construction of the Duncan Dam, the first of three Columbia dams, was half complete and some work had been done on the two other dams, the Arrow and the Mica. Work was on schedule.

On the Peace, the Portage Mountain dam had reached a height of 240 feet, less than half its finished height of 600. Work on this project also is on time, said the report.

Income Reflects New Rates

VANCOUVER (CP) — A big drop in net income but higher gross earnings were reported Monday by British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority.

The government-owned agency's annual report said net income dropped to $7,523,389 from last year's $13,162,522—a reduction that "partially reflects the electric rate reductions introduced April 1, 1965."

Gross earnings climbed 4.9 per cent to $180,777,546. Kilowatt-hour electricity sales increased 15.8 per cent and gas sales were up 5.3 per cent.

BREAKDOWN
The report also broke down revenue from both electricity sales and gas sales. Hydro got $104,917,978 from electricity and $31,198,277 from gas.

Railway freight revenues of more than $6,000,000 and transit service revenues of $14,044,258 accounted for the rest of Hydro's income.

Hydro also spent $227,457,696 during the year on expansion—$73,200,000 on the Columbia project and $69,800,000 on the Peace River project.

Kidney Transplant Leads to Recovery

TORONTO — Recovered from a delicate kidney transplant performed Jan. 31, Arthur Van Zandt, an Owen Sound tobacco salesman, is back at work in the Toronto office of his old firm, L. R. Greene Ltd.

Van Zandt was close to death many times after his own kidneys failed 15 months ago, and his left forearm was amputated because of blood clotting while he was living on an artificial kidney machine.

A kidney from 16-year-old Frances Gagliardi, who had been killed in a traffic accident, was transplanted into Van Zandt's body.

Today, "everything's fine," his wife said.

HOLLYWOOD — Former presidential advisor Jack Valenti is paying his first visit to Hollywood in his new position as president of the Motion Picture Association to learn about the movies.

Flood Zones Toured By Roblin

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin shifted from election campaign to flood tour Monday.

His view from an RCAF helicopter covered inundated beaches from the southern tip of water-gorged Lake Winnipeg to flooded farm land in the Howardville area 75 miles north of here.

Before heading back to Winnipeg for speeches for the June 23 Manitoba election, the premier landed at Gimli, 40 miles north of here, to pick up Education Minister George Johnson and flood control officials.

Dr. Johnson is concerned about record high water pushed into the world's ninth largest lake by swollen rivers—the Red, Winnipeg and Saskatchewan.

Police Fear Children Have Gun

VANCOUVER (CP) — City homicide detectives said Sunday they fear youngsters may be in possession of a pistol used in the shooting of a man on a city beach.

A police spokesman said they are almost positive that Charles John Whitehead, 43, of Vancouver, who died of two bullet wounds in the stomach, shot himself with a .380-calibre semi-automatic pistol. However, the weapon has not been found.

Police believe that children, thinking Whitehead to be only asleep, picked up the weapon. They said the pistol is likely loaded with one or more bullets.

TEST: Car hits ramp at 50 mph...

...crunches onto its roof...

...flips upside down...

Mercedes-Benz and safety: a story of rigid roofs, folding ends, swinging axles, $44 tires and $15 locks.

SAFETY? Consider the Mercedes-Benz 230S. If we shaved a few inches off the roofline, prettied up the dashboard and steering wheel, and softened the seats, the car would certainly have more showroom appeal.

But such changes affect safety—and our engineers will not yield on these matters.

SAFE AT SPEED. Mercedes-Benz refuse to install soft-spring seats that compromise safe road-holding. Any Mercedes-Benz can be driven around a racing circuit flat out, in utter safety.

There's no need to substitute "heavy duty" parts, either; all parts are "heavy duty". (Tires on the 230S, for example, cost $44 each.)

ROADHOLDING: The unique Mercedes-Benz low-pivot swing axle started life in a world champion racing car. Its virtues will become instantly apparent the first time you are forced to swerve abruptly, brake savagely or corner quickly.

BRAKES: Among experts, Mercedes-Benz cars are renowned for their stopping power. The reason? Impeccable engineering from the ground up—tires, suspension system, weight distribution.

The brakes themselves (disc up front, huge drums at the rear) would stop a car of twice the weight. Front and rear brakes have separate systems (if one set fails, you still stop).

HIGHWAY FATIGUE ITEMS: Most car buyers plump for soft seats. Mercedes-Benz seats are undeniably firm.

A liability in the showroom, these seats are a blessing on the highway. Orthopedic surgeons designed them to give firm support to the knees, shoulders, back and bottom. They keep you fresh, alert—and superbly comfortable.

In a Mercedes-Benz, instruments are placed where they can be seen at a glance. They are legible; they are shrouded to kill glare. All to reduce eyestrain.

Fresh air is constantly circulated, and stale air exhausted, to stave off drowsiness. Even tiny harmonic vibrations, inaudible and unfelt, are tuned out, since they dull the senses.

APPEARANCE: Styling purists say the 230S sits too high. Mercedes-Benz retorts that the driver sits high, with a commanding view of the highway. He can also see all four corners of the car without craning.

The 230S steering wheel is indelicate, too. But decidedly functional. Smaller, thinner wheels are less comfortable to grip. And more tiring.

FOLDING ENDS: In a head-on crash, the front end of a Mercedes-Benz will fold. It will act as a shock absorber, to cushion impact. If you are hit from the rear, the back end will crumple.

Tests show that up to nine tenths of the force of impact is dissipated by this patented "folding body" system.

Between the shock-absorbing ends is an incredibly strong passenger area. Roof supports, for example, are built with the strength of a roll bar on a racing car. (The pictures above were taken during a test of this principle.)

CAREFUL PACKAGING: In a Mercedes-Benz anything that can cause injury is either recessed, flexible, generously padded, or made of special soft metal.

The windshield will pop out in a crash, away from the occupants. The rear-view mirror is spring-mounted. Impacts over 16 lbs. spring it loose.

One thing won't give way, though—the door locks. Their safety-cone design stops the doors from springing open during a crash. These locks cost $15 each.

Nobody sees or admires $60 worth of locks. They are simply part of the hidden value in a Mercedes-Benz.

Come in and drive one soon.

Dangerous Trend

HERE IN THE WEST of Canada it is difficult to anticipate the lengths to which Quebec's new government will be prepared to go to achieve its aspirations of autonomy or separate nationality. But there is no doubt about the strength of the movement.

The Liberal moderates, under Mr. Jean Lesage, lost the larger proportion of the popular vote, 9 per cent, in the recent provincial election. Union Nationale, led by Premier Daniel Johnson, lost 1.9 per cent.

The significant figures are to be found in returns of the outright separatist groups: Le Ralliement National, offering "associate state" status for Quebec won 3.1 per cent of the vote; Le Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale which campaigned on a platform of outright separation from the rest of Canada won 5.5 per cent of the vote. But in the 90 ridings it contested out of the 108 it won 7.5 per cent and in Montreal, where its main strength lies, it took 9.3 per cent.

The RN and the RIN are the extremists, it is true, but they are fellow-travellers with the Union Nationale in the quest for wider Quebec autonomy. The chief difference between them and Mr. Johnson's party is that they are prepared to march farther.

It is quite useless to try to hide the sad facts of the case: Quebec, for a variety of reasons, is dissatisfied with the status of equality with other provinces. And the root cause probably goes very much deeper than its people's concern for cultural and language considerations. Their very history provides elements to keep alive resentment.

The Quebec attitude seems unreasonable to the rest of Canada, and on the basis of this illustration is hard to accept. The Edmonton and Calgary campuses of the University of Alberta are planning a Second Century Week for next March in which all other Canadian universities have been invited to participate. And what is the position of the Union Generale des Etudiants de Quebec? Under the two-nation concept of Canada, their spokesman, Daniel LaTouche of the University of Montreal, declares, they are entitled to have as many delegates to the festival as all the rest of Canadian universities combined.

If they are denied this privilege they won't play. Inexorable? Unjust? Unreasonable? Not to the way of thinking among the students of the universities of Quebec who consider themselves members of a separate nation.

This is the problem we face in Canada today, this resurgent nationalism. It is not a Canadian nationalism, although its adherents may insist that it is because they are the true Canadians. It is the nationalism of a resentful minority who remember that they were the earliest settlers and maintain, that although the forces of France were defeated by the British, the people of French Canada were never conquered. So they have clung all these years to old ties and traditions, and they have preserved as their emblem the lilies of ancient France.

Their pride and their resistance to the English influence are not qualities in character to be condemned. Rather they are to be admired more than censured. But a movement for separation entailing the dismembering of the country is a stiff price to ask for emancipation.

In the developing confrontation, which is expected to reach a critical stage when the federal and provincial representatives confer in the fall, cool heads are required and a minimum of emotion. Quebecers must remember that they are not alone in the possession of pride of origin and tradition and that perhaps by giving a little they can achieve much more than by the gratification of old resentments.

Move Along Please

THE UNITED STATES embassy in Saigon has protested to the South Vietnamese government over the manhandling of a crew of National Broadcasting Company cameramen who, it is alleged, were pushed back "at gun point" during a street demonstration.

Presumably the cameramen were attempting to film proceedings.

The embassy has every right to protest. But the question arises: What right had the NBC camera crew to set itself up on this particular location?

The South Vietnamese government is naturally a little sensitive in matters of jurisdiction, particularly when it is attempting to deal with its troublesome Buddhists, and no doubt would prefer to avoid the publicizing of such incidents as the NBC men were trying to record for the sensation-hungry public they serve.

They were doing their job and should not be criticized on that score.

But the Americans are still a foreign people in South Viet Nam. Invited guests, it is true; and so far as their fighting men and advisers, military and civilian, are concerned, they are no doubt welcome. Although they may enjoy a privileged position in many ways, they should not abuse it. They must certainly continue to recognize the responsibility of the law enforcement agencies of their allies' government.

If American civilians in the streets of Saigon refuse to "move on" at the direction of the police, then the Vietnamese have every right to manhandle them — and at gunpoint if necessary.

Irritating Noises

THE MODEL BOAT enthusiast who was ordered by police to take his 30-inch gasoline-powered hydroplane off the yacht pond at Holland Point is quite right when he says the pond was intended for motor-driven models as well as sailboats. Certainly the city had both kinds in mind when the pond was built.

However, it is equally certain that a noise nuisance was not foreseen. And this was the trouble with the hydroplane: it annoyed a neighbor.

The incident thus serves to point up once more the need for an anti-noise bylaw in Victoria, under which in this instance excessively ear-piercing models could be banned from the pond with full authority.

Regrettably, however, it does not contribute to the solution of the big problem standing in the way of passage of such a bylaw: how irritating noises can be defined and measured so as to make enforcement practicable.

It's not always volume that counts.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

WE were discussing the varied tongues of mankind in this space on Sunday. Here we go again about language.

But in a much different vein. Its slants as the mood reflects the enthusiasm of youth.

Delightful, too, for the beauty of idiom is how it may reflect a current fact. And, sometimes, infiltrate into the dictionary, which always lags far behind.

Like the A-Go-Go you cannot have missed as the latest explosion of youthful exuberance.

Probably you think of this simply as the gyrations of teenagers as they "dance" their hearts out in what to old squares like yours truly seems simply arms and legs swinging anyhow and anywhere in wild abandon.

Until, checking back to your own earlier days, you recall the Charleston and its like, which in their own way also symbolized the hysteria of sheer enjoyment.

And if you're frightened by the unrestrained vigor of A-Go-Go remember that when it's all over the girls and boys go home in the quiet calmness of recuperative reaction.

If I gather the symptoms aright A-Go-Go isn't confined to the terpsichorean art. You could have a wooden leg and be a swinger. And you don't need an orchestra.

To be a Swinger and A-Go-Goer—they are synonymous—if I have fashioned these new-found semantics correctly, you don't even have to lift your feet or wave your arms. But you must in your outlook and actions be two days ahead of tomorrow.

Lively and on the ball and then some.

The PRO boys are sure to latch onto this latest diversion of terminology. It's right down their promotional alley. Or up, for down implies old hat and up means right on the go-go.

John Fisher, for example, the kingpin of Confederation, celebration events, is a real Swinger. He says Expo 67 is going to be a smash show; in other words, A-Go-Go. The biggest go-go you've ever seen.

If you go and see it, naturally. Otherwise you'll have to take this for granted.

What a pity, though, Centennial Square was fashioned a year or so before the young folk coined these captivating captions of Swinging and A-Go-Go. If it was still on the drawing board, the architects could have swung into verbal thrusts and cited it as a go-go project which would put Victoria into the A-Go-Go mood.

A genuine civil swinger.

It's the credo of go-to-it. In all things, is the A-Go-Go. Yesterday instead of tomorrow.

Think of this when you watch the young Swingers in action, enjoying the best years of their lives. Think too if you like of Mr. Gaglardi, a go-goer apparently from the day he was born and before the A-Go-Go became a symbol in capital letters. He anticipated these catch-words.

Which reflect nothing less than the spirit of dynamism, Mr. Bennett's fond appellation.

This writer, a bit of a foot-slinger in his own palm (or balm) heyday, would like fine to be up there swinging with these A-Go-Go youngsters, you know. Except that he'd look darn silly if he did, I'm afraid.

Youth and Mr. Otto

Confounding Confusion

By PHILIP DEANE

ONE of the wonderful things about democracy is that its politicians at times act so oddly that they make the rest of us feel superior and happiness is finding any other kind.

So we should feel grateful to the Ontario NDP and to Mr. Steven Otto, a federal member of Parliament. The Ontario NDP have come up with a new program which is to steal the program of the so-called New Left. This program, blooming in the universities, is a new incarnation of the traditional drive by the young to run their own affairs, not to be in subordinate positions because of their age, not to be advised, directed, scolded or lectured.

Older people also feel the same way but they are older and therefore tired and have given up fighting the system, especially if they are parents and must hold on to jobs to support their young while these take up fighting the system.

And now the NDP is horning in. They expect to win votes from the young. I fear the estimable New Democratic Party overlooks one important fact which is that the young who call themselves the New Left, are asking, as each generation asks, for a role, something they can do themselves, organize themselves. They do not want to work through one of the established parties and be co-opted, harassed or used. If the NDP moves in on the New Left, the New Left will stop being new in the eyes of the young who will move elsewhere, much as the teenagers abandon a dance the minute grown-ups adopt it.

Now we come to Mr. Otto. He proposes the establishment of a nationwide organization to promote the views and interests of the "third part" of Canada which is neither French nor Anglo-Saxon in origin. He can't be serious.

As if we hadn't enough troubles with the Quebec separatists and the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Mr. Otto proposes to inject into much disputes a Greek element, among others. He should first study the history of Greek churches in North America.

Before the mortgage is even half paid, they split because one member of the board feels the other is being snooty in buying a pre-war Lincoln Continental, a car that denotes a certain pretentiousness. And so a new Greek church is formed, a new loan is floated, and one more mortgage company is happy.

Or consider the relations between Greeks and Bulgarians who call themselves Macedonians in North America. Bulgarians believe that Greeks catch Bulgarians, line them up in groups of hundreds, blind ninety-nine and leave the hundredth with one eye to lead the others home. It did happen, once, to ten thousand Bulgarians in the 10th century which is only yesterday for people with a long history.

As for the Greeks, they believe the Bulgarians actually invented every form of crime. When one Greek wants to wound another Greek, he calls him a Bulgarian. Calling your husband Bulgarian is just cause for his leaving you — there was an actual court case. I don't know how much money the country will spend on the Bi-Bi commission to study Anglo-French stresses, but Canada simply does not have enough funds for a similar study of Greco-Bulgarian problems which go back a lot further.

I suggest we stick to bi-culturalism, if we must. But please, let's leave the Greeks and the Bulgarians out of it, also the Hindus, the Muslims, the Turks, the Armenians, the Italians and the inhabitants of South Tyrol.

existence of police forces, vaults, safes and other security devices shows the efficient communication existing between the owners of private property and the property-less.

This division of world society, being the basic cause of human conflict is as plain and prominent as the nose on Jimmy Durante's face, and has been pointed out by the Socialist Party of Canada for years.

Your job, as a protector of the status quo, apparently compels you to ignore this cause, in this case by trotting out the age-old cover-up of human nature, embellished by "lack of communication."

Causes of Conflict

Our editorial of June 8 seems to be another example of the endless excuses stored in that barrel for covering up the near limitless evils of capitalism.

You say "... one of the major root causes of many of our problems at home and abroad is the lack of communication between individuals and groups..." Present misunderstandings between nation and nation, labor and management, etc., "have been brought about through one or both failing to communicate with one another," and that today "we possess better technical means for communication than ever before, that 'certainly it is clear that the fault is a human one.'"

Not so. The cause is a SOCIAL one, which includes two factors — human plus environment.

For instance, take bank robbers and bank shareholders. There is no lack of communication here. Each side knows exactly what the other side wants. Their unpopularity with each other arises out of a conflict of interests between "haves" and "have nots." The

Labor's Mavericks
Upset U.S. Diplomacy

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE American labor movement has once again cut across America's declared foreign policy with an act bewildering to organized labor in the rest of the non-Communist world. The AFL-CIO delegates walked out of the International Labor Organization conference when the head of the Polish delegation was elected president by a vote of 184 to 183.

American business representatives stayed on, as did those from government. But following the George Meany line, American labor, of all the 106 nations represented at Geneva, refused to abide by the outcome of a free election to an office largely formal and procedural. While the move was without Meany's sanction, it is of a piece with the dictates of the man who sits behind him and calls the foreign policy moves.

Jay Lovestone is a figure as remote and mysterious as the great Khan and on the issues of foreign policy almost as absolute in the labor movement. Once a Communist, he became, as have so many others, a professional anti-Communist. His hold on the 72-year-old AFL-CIO president and the hierarchy of aging moguls around him is so strong that no interference or even criticism is tolerated.

An important initiative of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations is the opening of new avenues to the Communist bloc countries. This is in the belief that Moscow's grip is weakening and signs of independence should be encouraged. It is recognition of the fact that America's allies in Western Europe are drawing closer to the East through greatly expanded trade and cultural exchanges.

The AFL-CIO has often tried to frustrate this initiative. The International Longshoremen's Association announced they would not load ships with wheat for the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc countries. It took prolonged effort at the highest level to reach a compromise that made some shipments possible. The longshoremen have repeatedly proclaimed their refusal to unload cargoes from Communist countries, no matter how small and negligible in the total of American trade these shipments were.

Walter Reuther, second in command in the AFL-CIO, has kept silent even though he has been opposed to much of the arbitrary behavior. He has wanted to maintain at least a semblance of harmony and avoid a direct clash with Meany, whom he had hoped to succeed in the No. 1 post. His chances seemed to depend on preventing an open break in the uneasy alliance between the old-line unions and the new industrial unions.

Once Reuther's sharp criticism of the walkout at Geneva became known, the long knives were out. The old-line in the craft unions can be expected to use the opening to try to deny him the top job, no matter what papering-over is done in the immediate aftermath of the dispute.

Reuther is 59 years old, and the time is rapidly passing when he might provide the dynamic leadership which most observers feel the AFL-CIO urgently needs. Weighted with the inertia of the past, the organization has failed to adjust to the rapid changes in the labor forces. A negligible effort has been put into organizing the increasing mass of white collar workers.

Most of the AFL-CIO chiefs couldn't care less about the International Labor Organization. It has nothing to do with the hard facts of wages, hours and fringe benefits that affect their time and energy. But, as Reuther and others know, the symbolic value of the ILO and the role American labor could play are extremely important in the picture this nation presents to the world.

The conduct of foreign policy in a democracy is for the unhappy conductors, like running a race in which every conceivable obstacle is thrown in the way. President Johnson, seeking avenues to the East, recommended changes in the Tariff Act that would give satellite nations, that do not now have it, favored-nation treatment. This was a bold move in marked contrast to the timidity of only a few years ago.

It was vetoed by chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, who apparently dead for this session of Congress. That is "one man, one vote" with a vengeance. It comes just as Italy, France and Britain are making big trade deals with the Communist bloc countries.

The widening conflict in Viet Nam is the obvious reason for the failure to make some progress in easing tensions between East and West. The president sent to the Senate a consular treaty with the Soviet Union which had obvious mutual advantages for both powers. The treaty was "vetoed" by J. Edgar Hoover. You pay your money, as was once said, of politics here at home, and you make your choice of your own foreign policy.

Big Four Big Arms Dealers

By ARCH MACKENZIE, from Washington

With official gun-running at a new peak in the turbulent Middle East, there is speculation as to what part of the area will explode in conflict next.

The Soviet Union, the United States, France and Britain have been busy lining up arms deals in a race partly on East-West lines and partly on local issues.

The abiding hostility between Israel and the Arab bloc creates one opportunity for arms merchants.

Another is the deepening rift between President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic (Egypt) and Syria on the one hand and the more conservative Arab nations, such as Lebanon, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, on the other.

King Feisal of Saudi Arabia, heavily backed by Britain and the United States, is making a state visit to the United States this week. On the occasion of Feisal's trip, Nasser lashed out again at right-wing Arab elements, further ruffling the "Arab co-existence," in effect for more than two years.

Nasser's relations with the United States remain difficult, as he continues to try to make what capital he can out of the rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He remains heavily dependent on the United States for wheat and flour, however, and the United States is taking its time about renewing this aid, which expires June 30.

Arms sales are brisk and have been since the United Arab Command was formed more than two years ago to convert anti-Israeli sentiment into military hardware for the weaker Arab countries.

BACKGROUND

These events followed:

● King Hussein of Jordan, on Israel's north and east flanks, told Washington that President Nasser was offering Soviet arms at bargain prices. Washington coughed up with assorted tanks, armored vehicles and guns.

● Israel spoke up next and got 200 U.S.-built tanks.

● Jordan then applied for and got another batch of weapons. So did Israel.

● Jordan, after sounding out France and Britain, has obtained 36 reconditioned fighters from the United States.

● Israel has been buying from France in the past but is believed to have an option now on 50 American bombers.

● Soviet arms continue to flow into Egypt and Syria, whose left-wing regime may be the next to go.

● Britain and the United States have sold Saudi Arabia an air defence system costing more than $300,000,000.

Israel is not believed to be too worried about Egypt, bogged down still in the Yemeni civil war against Saudi Arabia and much troubled with other internal matters.

Jordan has been developing a lot of military muscle and, as observed by the New Republic magazine, Jordan "could, at least in theory, concentrate some 200 tanks at a given point near the Israeli border — one short drive and Israel would be cut in two."

It adds: "Naturally, the Israelis feel they need an additional armored brigade or two." So, another trip to Washington is predicted.

Huge Wheat Deal Trade Fillip But Our Bread May Cost More!

By JAMES NELSON from Ottawa

Canada's three-year wheat sale to Russia, the largest in the history of long-term contracts but smaller than some big one-year sales, not only provides a fillip to the economy but may force up the world price of wheat.

Finance Minister Sharp, announcing the sale Monday in the Commons, noted its impact not only on wheat farmers, elevators and grain handlers, but the effect it will have on the whole economy as its effects fan into transportation and retail trade.

More significant, in the eyes of some economists, however, is the question of wheat supplies and prices generally in the Western world.

Canada is the only one of the big four Western exporters—Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia—to have larger stocks currently available for export than one year ago.

The average per-bushel price at the seaboard is $2.38. Mr. Sharp said in an interview after the announcement the sales contract provides for a ceiling price, varied according to grade, for the three-year contract. The price prevailing for the first year is set in the agreement, and the price in the second and third years is subject to negotiation within the ceiling.

Mr. Sharp said the price prevailing in the first year is "slightly below the ceiling."

Prospects for this year's wheat production in the Prairie provinces still are good, but latest reports from the U.S. wheat belt speak of crop damage.

Canadian wheat always has commanded a premium price for its hardness and high protein content, for the high standards of Canadian grading and for Canada's reputation for being able to make shipments according to promised schedules.

Shipping schedules were upset this spring by the lengthy longshoremen's strike on the Montreal waterfront and at two other St. Lawrence ports.

But authorities now say that the strike settlement last week came just in the nick of time to prevent serious loss of Canadian reputation for prompt shipments. If it had gone on much longer, the damage would have been serious.

Finance Minister Sharp told a recent meeting of the Commons agricultural committee that one of his concerns has been the willingness of Washington to try to keep U.S. wheat prices down and the U.S. readiness to sell on credit or for local foreign currencies. Canada's wheat sales are for hard cash.

A major aspect of the new Russian sales, an authority said, is the length of the commitment.

Viet Nam Faces Economic Unrest

By STEPHEN SOMERVILLE, from Saigon

South Viet Nam's military leaders this week began their second year in power, facing not only the violent opposition of the Buddhists but an expected wave of discontent over drastic economic measures.

They have taken a calculated risk in devaluing the piastre and imposing other controls along lines proposed by the International Monetary Fund.

The aim is to halt continual price increases that would eventually wreck the economy. But the danger is that the immediate effect will be a rise in the cost of living, especially in the price of imported goods.

One foreign economist said: "This is a relatively strong dose of medicine, but it is warranted by the seriousness of the disease."

Economists think prices will stabilize themselves in two to three months, but at a level somewhat higher than at present. In the meantime, city dwellers will be hardest hit. Au Truong Thanh, economy minister, predicts "a period of some turbulence" in the markets, alongside the political turbulence.

The resentment may be partly offset by a long overdue salary increase, ranging from 20 to 30 per cent, for 75,000 government employees and members of the armed forces.

Civil servants' pay had remained unchanged since the beginning of last year, in which time food prices have risen by 84 per cent.

The government plans to freeze the price of rice and some other basic commodities for a few months and make available cheap, imported American rice. South Viet Nam used to be one of the world's great rice-growing areas but much of its land has been devastated by war.

The United States is giving full support and financial backing to the economic measures, the U.S. embassy says.

Basic cause of the present inflation is the Viet Nam war and the presence of more than 250,000 American soldiers and airmen.

To make sure enough foreign exchange is available for increased imports, the United States is putting up $150,000,000 for use in the next three months, while the South Vietnamese government is making $30,000,000 available.

But economic experts say the success of the program will depend also on improvements in the port of Saigon, more efficient collection, and a tight rein on government spending.

French A-Test Hinges on Wind

By JOSEPH H. BROOKS, from Honolulu

French meteorologists in the South Pacific are keeping their instruments closely attuned to the west wind.

A steady west wind of several days' duration is an essential ingredient for the success of their impending nuclear explosion on Mururoa Atoll 800 miles south of Tahiti.

If the first French test explosion in the South Pacific is followed by a steady west wind, atomic fallout will be safely scattered over 6,000 miles of uninhabited ocean between Mururoa and South America.

All told, the French are expected to conduct nuclear tests in French Polynesia for six to eight years, eventually perfecting a hydrogen bomb. Preparations for the first test will be completed by the end of June.

Task Force Alpha, a naval force built around the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Foch, is in Tahiti to police the testing area. About 6,500 scientists and workers are engaged in the project at the Centre de l'Expérimentation du Pacifique in Papeete, at Mururoa and other outlying atolls.

French scientists reportedly are so confident of their ability to predict wind conditions that they are not planning on evacuating the Tuare Islands, a scant 50 miles from Mururoa. Tuare has about 60 inhabitants.

A computer, which will receive all of the available meteorological information, will call the shot.

The French have built a network of meteorological stations in French Polynesia to amass weather data. They also

Teaching Career Put to End For Pure Painting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Artist Jack Shadbolt is quitting teaching because he likes it too much.

The 57-year-old man, one of Canada's best-known painters, says he is going to devote his time to his art.

Mr. Shadbolt, who has taught at the Vancouver School of Art for 35 years, says:

"I'm not quitting teaching because I don't like it, but because I like it too much."

"The constant discussion of ideas while teaching is too deflecting. I just want to look the door and concentrate."

He says he has been the beneficiary of years as a teacher — "everything I've learned about art has been by teaching it."

Teaching was part of a deliberately planned pattern Mr. Shadbolt set for himself years ago. Through it he earned enough to be able to paint without the "chaos" of worrying about money.

"I decided there was enough chaos in the ideas of art and I wanted a steady pattern for my life."

Provincial Park to Have Airstrip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial parks authorities confirmed Monday that an American-owned mining company looking for minerals in Tweedsmuir provincial park has been given permission to build an airstrip in the park.

Ashfork Mines Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. of the U.S., has staked about 270 claims near the western boundary of the park, about 320 miles northwest of here. Some mineral claims are within the park, said authorities. A spokesman said a permit to build and operate an airstrip in the park was granted because otherwise the company would have wanted an access road which would have caused more damage.

The mineral claims were staked by the company from 1959 to 1966. Under new legislation approval is necessary from the recreation minister for further prospecting in such Class B parks.

Tweedsmuir is a 2,400,000-acre park, largely undeveloped. The park's branch spokesman said the company was told that if and when a mine comes into production inside the park, new road access must be provided from the coast.

'Thank-You' Strip Results in Trip

LONDON (AP) — Gay society wife Hazel MacKintosh, whose penchant for stripping at parties shocked some and amused others among their friends, is moving to the Canary Islands with her wealthy husband.

Gordon MacKintosh, grandson of the founder of a candy fortune, said Sunday:

"Personally, I'll be sorry to leave all my friends. But one thing is certain — Devon will never be the same without us."

Devon is one of Britain's snootier counties and the attractive 38-year-old Hazel and her husband were among the livelier members of the tweedy set.

Her strip-tease at a party in the exclusive Imperial Hotel in Torquay of a few months ago as a way of saying "thank you" to the band amused her husband — but not his family.

"I never dreamed my mude dance would result in our leaving the country," said Hazel.

Her husband agreed with her theory that a woman's body is a beautiful thing and there is nothing wrong in showing it off in fun.

MacKintosh said his family "were very annoyed but now I'm happy to say that all our difficulties have been solved."

Drinking Reduced

Interdiction Bluff 'Worth the Risk'

Magistrate H. K. Tasker, who overstepped his authority to frighten Friendly Cove Indians out of their drinking ways, says it was worth the risk.

Mr. Tasker threatened April 19 to interdict all the adult males of the Nootka band when he heard an inquest blame drinking for the death of an Indian baby in a fire at the village.

His powers do not allow him to interdict anyone who does not come before him on a specific charge.

'TRIED TO HELP'

"I have lived in this area for 10 years," he said. "I know the problem."

"All I tried to do was help."

He said he had received no adverse reaction from the attorney-general's department as a result of his stated intention. Deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy said in Victoria the department was aware the statement was a bluff.

Still, the bluff went beyond Mr. Tasker's authority. Asked whether he felt it was worth the personal risk, the Tahsis magistrate replied:

"Of course I do."

The magistrate said he believed his action had already reduced the drinking problem at Friendly Cove but complained the benefits were diluted by press coverage.

Drinking has contributed to crimes and accidental deaths among the band, particularly drownings of fishermen, he said.

'Withdraw' Russia Demands

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The Soviet Union Monday demanded withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic "and other countries where they are now stationed" as the price of disarmament agreement.

In reply to a general assembly questionnaire to all U.N. members on the economic and social consequences of disarmament, Moscow also called for a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons and the scrapping of proposals for Atlantic alliance multilateral nuclear force which the Russians fear would give nuclear arms to West Germany.

ZONES URGED

The Soviet Union also urged establishment of nuclear-free zones in Africa, Latin America and other areas where a "desire" to make nuclear weapons would cost ambitious countries unnecessarily.

It further demanded a ban on underground nuclear tests, declaring that national systems of seismic detection developed by the United States and the Soviet Union made additional expense for international inspection unnecessary.

Hanoi Frigid?

OTTAWA — Chester Ronning, retired Canadian diplomat, has reported to Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin on his special peace mission to Hanoi. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked in the Commons whether it was true that Mr. Ronning, 71, a China expert, had encountered "frigid contempt" from Communist leaders in North Viet Nam.

Mr. Martin said it would be unwise for the government to reveal details of the Hanoi discussions.

Fasting Monk Moved

H.E. South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Heavily armed troops today moved the fasting Buddhist anti-government leader, Thich Tri Quang, from a hospital bed to the headquarters of the national police chief here.

The 44-year-old monk was nearing the end of his 13th day of a hunger strike in protest against U.S. support for the Saigon military administration.

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard inquiry got underway Monday into last Thursday's collision of two tankers in the Kill Van Kull between Staten Island and New Jersey.

Twenty-one seamen were killed in the collision, which also involved two tugboats, at the entrance to Newark Bay.

Eleven seamen still are listed as missing. The coast guard accounted for 71 survivors.

A three-man marine board of investigation headed by Rear Admiral William B. Ellis, chief of staff of the Third Coast Guard District, launched the inquiry.

Joseph Barry Snyder, 23-year-old third mate on the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts, testified he saw the wash of the Alva Cape as she proceeded under the Bayonne bridge.

"We gave one short blast and I heard a blast coming from the other ship..."

He explained that the single blasts indicated that each ship was continuing her course.

At 2:08 p.m., Snyder testified, the Texaco Massachusetts again sounded one blast and received an answering three blasts from the Alva Cape, a signal to the Texaco vessel to go full astern.

Snyder said he swam ashore after the collision, the port's worst disaster since the 1960 blaze claimed 50 lives aboard the aircraft carrier Constellation in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

At 2:12, the third mate said, "we made contact with the Alva Cape. The Texaco Massachusetts bow met the bow of the Alva Cape."

A Daily Passport costs $1.50, a Weekly Passport (7 consecutive days) $6.50. There are also Season Passports and Youth Passports for the 12-17 age group. Children 2-12, half price. (Ages as on April 28, 1967). Available at banks, travel agencies, department stores, or wherever you see the official Expo 67 sign.

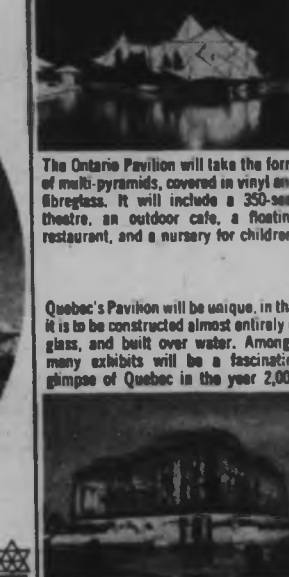

The day Expo 67 opens, shipwrights from down East will lay the keel of a schooner. They'll go on building, clanging, until the ship slides into the water, six months later. That's just one of the fascinating features of the Atlantic Provinces exhibit.

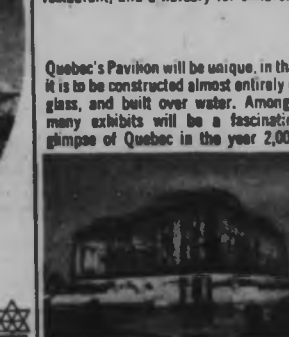

The whirl of French Canada's colourful dance spectacle, les Feux Follets, will be seen throughout the six-month Expo 67 season. Other visitors will include the National Ballet, Winnipeg Ballet, and folk and ethnic dance groups from all over Canada.

Covering 11 1/4 acres, the Canada Pavilion will be the biggest in all Expo 67. At its centre is a giant inverted pyramid — Katimavik, Eskimo for "meeting place". To see it all — the six-story-high maple tree with 500 colour photographs as leaves, the revolving theatre, children's centre, art and sculpture, glass clubs and gymnasia — will take you at least three hours. After that, try a buffalo steak, Prairie grouse or Arctic cher in one of the great restaurants.

The Ontario Pavilion will take the form of multi-pyramids, covered in vinyl and fibreglass. It will include a 350-seat theatre, an outdoor cafe, a floating restaurant, and a nursery for children.

Quebec's Pavilion will be unique, in that it is to be constructed almost entirely of glass, and built over water. Amongst many exhibits will be a fascinating glimpse of Quebec in the year 2000.

With a roll of drums and the stirring music of massed bands, Canada's Armed Forces will present a spectacular military tattoo. 1700 performers, pageantry, colourful costumes, history, action comedy — an experience you'll never forget.

"Hubert, I implore you, take me to Expo 67" — the motto for all drama lovers in 1967. Prominent classical and modern works will be Ontario's famous Stratford Theatre, Montreal's Théâtre du Nouveau Monde and outstanding companies from across Canada and around the world.

Banks Await Terms Of New Act

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Terms of the new Bank Act are expected to be placed before the Commons this week. A resolution on the order paper says the forthcoming bill will be in force until July 1, 1976 — the normal 10-year span.

The resolution gives no details of what Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp is to introduce for Commons approval.

The main point so far as the banks are concerned is the ceiling on the amount of interest they may charge.

This is presently limited to six per cent, at which level the banks say they are unable to operate successfully in competition with the near-bank who can charge what the traffic will bear.

At the recent annual general meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association, S. T. Paton, president, indicated some compromise might be expected but that while the banks wanted the ceiling removed altogether, "half a loaf was better than no bread."

INCREASED EARNINGS

Increased earnings by Placer Development for the year ended April 25 are reported. Net profit of $5,425,248 ($1.22) compared with $5,041,586 (96 cents) in the previous fiscal year.

Sales during the period increased by 3.6 per cent while the industry increase was only 2.4 per cent.

The figures were given in the company's annual report.

With Harry Young

It is surprising that Johnnie Johnston, who has won so many amateur events—including the Canadian championship—should have to wait until 1966 to become B.C. Champion for the first time.

His win in the final at Capilano against Wayne Vollmer, the defending champion, was worthy of particular note because the young University of Arizona golfer has played throughout the week in a way to suggest he was nearly invincible.

Johnston and Vollmer had no difficulty in claiming their places on the Willingdon Cup team to play at Montreal in August, and Johnston was also able to claim a spot, partly on the score that he reached the semi-final at Capilano.

For the final spot there was less unanimity, and Gorge Vale's Art Donaldson, who, like Russell, was a defeated semi-finalist, finally made it although in some quarters it was thought there should have been a playoff for the last spot.

On Donaldson's form since he rejoined amateur ranks less than a year ago, there should have been little doubt. He is not only a seasoned campaigner, but he travels well and is imbued with the winning spirit that is so essential a part of the make-up of any Willingdon Cup team. The honor has been well won.

Here's the news that Victoria Juniors have been awaiting. The B.C. Golf Association has confirmed that the match between Victoria and Vancouver will be played this summer with each side fielding 10 players.

Dates and venue have yet to be arranged, but it is expected that the matches will be played in late July or early August.

The Victoria District Golf Committee has chosen the first ten finishers in the City Junior Championship to take part in the Vancouver matches.

They are Dave McCall, Uplands; John Morgan, Colwood; C. Ferguson, Gorge Vale; Al Cliff, Uplands; Don Billaborough, Uplands; D. Zabel, Uplands; R. Howard, Colwood; B. Carbery, Victoria; B. Gandy, Cedar Hill, and P. Moretti, Victoria. First and second spots are W. Doane, Gorge Vale, and M. Gray, Colwood.

The closing series of the Inter-Club matches at Gorge Vale and Colwood Wednesday evening appears more or less a formality. Nobody believes that Gorge Vale, with that eight-point lead over Uplands, can possibly miss regaining the Willie Park driver.

Even if Uplands makes a clean sweep of its final match at Colwood—extremely unlikely—Gorge would have to win only 1½ out of nine points against Victoria to make sure of the trophy.

At Gorge Vale, the leaders will have Al MacLeod and Lex Sutcliffe against George Bigelow and Doug Munro. Art Donaldson back to pair with Dave Fanthorpe against Paul Trapp and Ron Scott-Moncrieff, and Gordon Jones and Mel Carlow against J. R. Flanagan and Jay Wilson.

At Colwood, Uplands will send Gordie Fellow and Don Billaborough against Vic Painter and Don Ross, Bob Hunt and Eric Wright against Bill Court and Earl Davies and Frank Scroggs and Bob Morrison against Rick Kent and George Andrews.

The original intention was that the prizes for the Inter Club contest would be presented at a dinner at Gorge Vale on Friday evening, but it has been found necessary to postpone the event—probably until September or October.

The reason is that the Victoria team will be travelling to Seattle for a match on the following day with the Seattle Golf Club and a number of members of other teams will be on holiday.

The resignation of Tony Ritchie, of Cedar Hill from his position as chairman of the Victoria District junior development committee was accepted with regret at a meeting of the Victoria District committee at the weekend.

Tony, who co-ordinated this year's successful junior clinic at Douglas Highlands, asked to be relieved of his duties because of extra personal obligations.

Mike Morgan and Clair Mitchell of Gorge Vale dethroned Peter McIntyre and John Sturdy of Victoria as holders of the senior trophies. They beat the holders on the 18th at Colwood. Next challengers are Ray Spouse and Jack Brown of Gorge Vale, and the all Gorge affair will be played on that course.

Mrs. Anne Dye won the Gorge Vale women's handicap title with Pat Mitchell as runner-up. Irene Horne won the prize for the best first round and Mrs. Margaret Fry for the second round.

Another New Lion

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions have added a 22nd newcomer to their Courtney training camp.

Latest to cast in with the 1964 Canadian football champions is Craig Murray, 200-pound, two-way back from Utah State University. Old for a college rookie at 26, Murray was a regular for three years and co-captain of the Aggies last year. His college education was delayed by a two-year hitch in the U.S. armed forces.

Murray is the 17th new import signed by the Lions, and their ninth new backfielder. The Lions expect to announce at least two more newcomers before they start training on July 3.

Kathy Sets Record

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Texan Kathy Whitworth shot a torrid 63 to shatter a Ladies Professional Golf Association record for a 72-hole tournament and captured the Milwaukee Jaycee Open with a 273 Sunday. The seven-under-par total for the 72-hole, $13,000 tournament was two strokes under the 275 standard set by Mickey Wright in Spokane, Wash., in 1962. Miss Whitworth shot rounds of 63, 71, 69 and 63 as she easily came home far in front of Sandra Haynie, Fort Worth, Tex., who finished second with a 285. Donna Caponi and Carol Mann tied for third with 288 and Marilyn Smith was fifth with 290. Miss Whitworth, the leading money winner on the LPGA tour this season, added $1,950 to her earnings.

CALGARY (CP) — Moe Norman of Toronto won the $2,000 first prize in the $12,000 Willow Park pro-amateur golf tournament on Sunday.

Frank Fowler of Calgary was third with 214 and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Harry Umbhetti of Spokane and Alvie Thompson of Toronto were next at 215.

Then came Al Nelson of Vancouver at 216 and Bob Loftus and Bill Wakeham at 217. Wakeham, former Victoria amateur ace, is assistant pro to Fowler.

Fords Sweep, Set Records at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — The confusion almost obscured an impressive prestige victory for Ford racers in their third appearance at Le Mans.

Sport Council Sets Meeting

Everyone in the crowd thought Ken Miles of Hollywood, Calif., and Denis Hulme of New Zealand had won in an identical car.

Miles and Hulme were getting ready to mount a platform to receive victory bouquets from Henry Ford II when the decision was reversed and McLaren and Amon were given the victory, in which records were set for distance and speed.

What had been heralded as a duel between Ford and Ferrari — with the Ferrari the favorite — collapsed after about 10 hours of racing.

From the 12th hour on, Ford was obviously an overwhelming victor and by the last hour it was clear Ford would take the first three places. Third place in another seven-liter Ford Mark II, went to Ronnie Bucknam of La Canada, Calif., and Dick Hutcherson of Keokuk, Iowa.

City Pitcher Collars Title

Roy Leachman of the Greater Victoria Horsehoe Pitching Association won the Washington State Open championship, "B" division, at Bellingham Sunday.

Then the computer came in. An electronic device was mounted on each car to perform a card each time it passed over the finish line.

With the two cars crossing almost together at the end of 24 hours, the computer then made a rapid calculation that in the Le Mans start, in which some cars are farther up the track than others, Miles had covered about 30 yards less distance than McLaren.

For the start, cars are lined up according to qualifying times. Miles qualified second and McLaren fourth. For being faster in the trials, Miles got a head start which made him lose the race for distance. The winning car was credited with a record distance of 3,002.70 miles and record average speed of 125.1 m.p.h. In addition Ford set a lap record of 3:30.8 and speed of 142.6 m.p.h. for a Mark II driven by Dan Gurney.

Plate Forfeiture May Follow Vintage Car Use

Vintage car registration plates are attractive. They are also restrictive. A condition of the issuance of the perpetual plates is that the old cars be used only for club rallies, exhibitions and similar events.

And that's where John Adams, 2750 Fifth, went astray. Police saw his 1931 Model A Ford truck parked on Bay Street May 27.

In the back was a pile of furniture.

Adams pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Monday to violating the use of the plates and was fined $25.

He admitted a previous conviction for the offence and Magistrate J. A. Byers said he would recommend to the motor vehicles branch that the plates be forfeited.

Law and the Driver

Many motorists are not aware of the changes of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act. For their benefit, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee has prepared a list of traffic regulations with explanations where needed.

Not included are changes which refer specifically to professional drivers.

SECTION 144(a) Driving on Landed Roadway

When driving a vehicle on a landed roadway a driver shall not drive the vehicle from one lane to another when a broken line only exists between the lanes unless he has ascertained that such movement can be made with safety and that the movement will in no way affect the travel of another vehicle.

Comment:

This sub-section permits a person to drive from one lane to another over a broken line. However, before he does so he must ascertain if the movement can be made safely. When this movement will affect the travel of another vehicle the driver must not change lanes until he can do so in safety.

While the Motor Vehicle Act permits you to change lanes on streets such as Yates, Douglas etc., where there are two lanes for travel in each direction, the onus is on you to make certain that such move can be made without in any way causing another driver to have to take evasive action to prevent an accident.

Dear Friends:

Jesus said:

"Take heed therefore how you hear."—Luke 8:18

"Take heed what you hear."—Mark 4:24

There are many new and strange ideas being expressed among some of the churches today. Ideas and principles which have long been cherished by Bible-believing people are now, in many cases, being ignored.

As has often been the case through the years, men are rebelling against some of the basic concepts of the Christian religion. The inspiration of the Scriptures, the divinity of Christ, the fatherhood of God, the necessity of man's total obedience, the power of a life of faith and prayer—these and other Bible-based concepts are sometimes passed over.

Therefore, we feel compelled "to write unto you of the common salvation . . ." and to "exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" (Jude 3). We urge you to follow the example of the noble Bereans mentioned in Acts 17:11. They took heed how and what they heard as "they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so."

The Apostle Paul explains why those trying to serve God must be concerned about their approach: "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (II Tim. 4:2-4).

In the interest of truth and freedom under God, we are concluding our "Power for Today" campaign for Christ with a series of four sermons that will deal with some basics of Christianity. Continuing tonight at 8 p.m., and nightly at the same hour, Mr. Carl Spain will speak in the Oak Bay Junior High Auditorium.

The topics which you will hear discussed are:

Tuesday — "Inspiration of the Bible"
Wednesday — "The New Birth"
Thursday — "The True Church"
Friday — "The Judgment Day"

These next days could be the most important of your life. We urge you to meet with us as we search together for the truths of God's word. Bring a friend with you. No collection will be taken.

Cordially,
Jim Hawkins, for the congregation.

Feature Film Industry Given Government Help

OTTAWA (CP) — A resolution designed to help found a feature film industry in Canada was approved Monday by the Commons despite hard knocks from maverick Liberal Ralph B. Cowan.

The York-Humber MP said the government tells old age pensioners that it can't afford to raise their monthly pensions to $100 from $75. Yet it could afford to throw away $10,000,000 to get Canada started in feature films.

State Secretary LaMarsh introduced the resolution proposing establishment of the Canadian Film Development Corp. with $10,000,000 available as loans to film-makers.

MORE MONEY

Mr. Cowan, who occasionally takes an anti-government line, predicted it wouldn't be long before more money would have to be put into the pot. Private industry would have jumped into the business if it was a money-maker.

Miss LaMarsh said fewer than half a dozen feature films made by Canadians are shown in the country's 1,400 movie houses.

This was the situation the corporation is designed to remedy. With no feature film industry there had been no career opportunity for Canadian actors and film technicians. Many moved to the United States. The main Canadian output was in industrial and documentary films, TV commercials and TV work generally. Development of a feature film industry would complement the arts.

INVESTMENT

The new corporation could invest in the Canadian film industry. For its investment, the corporation would reap a return of any profits and plow this back into the corporation.

There also would be achievement awards both for producers and technical staff. A stress would be put on distribution and export.

CHAINS FREE

Big chains would not be told they had to take a percentage of Canadian feature films. However, the government was "counting on film agencies to support the new corporation."

Robert McCleave (PC-Hallifax) said the Conservatives supported the proposal. He thought the plan was one to "excite the blood and encourage the dancing."

BUSINESSMEN

However, he wondered if a government could guarantee "legislative artistic and fiscal success" in a field such as the film industry.

Patronage must be avoided in appointments to the corporation. Its makeup must be "not only from the arts but from the world of business."

As he spoke unidentified MPs suggested Miss LaMarsh in the role of Laura Secord sneaking through the enemy lines might make a good subject for a feature film. Or one based on Gerda Munsinger might prove a hit.

Robert Priddle (NDP-Burnaby-Richmond) said the reason a Canadian feature film industry had not developed was because control of the theatres was vested outside Canada.

Jet Fleet Will Be Expanded

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada plans to expand its fleet of DC-9 jets to 14 from five within a year, the Commons was told Monday.

The DC-9s, larger and less noisy than the Viscounts in use since 1955, were introduced this year on routes linking Montreal with New York, Winnipeg, Toronto and Tampa, Fla.

MacEachen Explains

Income Support Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister MacEachen indicated Monday there is no immediate plan to adopt a guaranteed annual income for the aged as proposed by a Senate committee.

He told the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare that an extensive study now is under way of methods of income support, including the guaranteed annual income.

"While the latter has a good deal to commend it, it has a number of far-reaching implications which must be fully weighed before any decision is taken," he said.

"... In the meantime I am sure you will agree that regardless of any action that may be taken in the future, the need for a soundly-based program of public assistance with a strong emphasis on prevention and rehabilitation will continue."

His statement appeared to mean acceptance by the federal government of the position of the Canadian Welfare Council. Late last month the council cautioned in a brief to Prime Minister Pearson against adopting a guaranteed annual income pending further study.

The Senate committee recommended after a three-year study that all single Canadians be guaranteed $1,200 a year; $1,500 for married couples; and $2,200 for families with children.

Mr. MacEachen was substituting for Prime Minister Pearson as a guest speaker at the social welfare conference. A text of his address was issued to the press before delivery.

Mr. MacEachen also replied to criticism at the Canadian Medical Association convention in Edmonton last week of the federal government's medical care insurance proposals.

He said one of the conditions attached to the federal offer to pay half the medical care insurance costs has been misinterpreted. "This misinterpretation relates to the translation of the word universal into the word compulsory."

"I should like to make it quite clear that the federal government did not state and has never stated that coverage must be compulsory."

Puerto Rico Junket Explained

OTTAWA (CP) — The case of the mysterious "B and B" junket to Puerto Rico has been solved.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, in the Commons Friday, asked how many members of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism journeyed to "that salubrious area" and why.

Monday, a spokesman for the commission said commissioners Royce Frith of Toronto and Jean-Louis Gagnon of Montreal flew to Puerto Rico, but merely to board the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

He said the pair sailed on the carrier for a four-day training cruise to Halifax at the navy's suggestion.

The purpose was to get the feel of actual operations on a ship as they relate to language and cultural factors.

He said the commission was interested in relations between French- and English-speaking crew members and the potential effects of using bilingual orders.

Boy Begged for Food Forbidden by Strict Diet

VANCOUVER (CP)—A father testified Monday that his 22-month-old boy literally begged for food to the day of his death but couldn't have it because of a strict diet prescribed by a naturopath.

Harry Dimosten, a fisherman, was testifying at the inquest into the death of his son, Leonidas Dimosten. The jury ruled the boy died of malnutrition after being on a special diet for seven weeks.

The inquest was studied with sharp verbal clashes between the father and the naturopath, Dr. E. E. Rogers, and between four doctors and the naturopath.

The jury was told that the boy had been taken to Dr. Rogers—who has a medical degree but who has been barred from practising medicine except as a naturopath—for treatment of a skin condition.

The father testified that Dr.

Rogers ordered a strict diet of chopped vegetables, grapefruit and some milk to clear the "poison" in his body. The child died of malnutrition seven weeks later.

"When his brothers were eating meat, butter and milk, the little fellow would reach up his arms and plead for some, but he couldn't have any," said Mr. Dimosten. "We were following instructions 100 per cent."

Dr. Rogers testified the boy was destined to die because he had an advanced disease, was full of "poison," and lacked the vitality to live.

"If he had stayed with the physicians treating him he would have died anyway," he told the jury. "Patients come to me because conventional methods fail. They admit this is so by coming to me."

He said he was driving the "poison" from the boy's body by "natural means."

Pathologist Dr. T. R. Harmon said his autopsy showed a picture "of extreme starvation, malnutrition, loss of protein and anemia." He said the boy could have been saved "if he had been properly treated . . . He was combating his skin infection very well."

He clashed with Dr. Rogers on several technical medical points.

Dr. Sidney Isreal, pediatrician at Vancouver General Hospital, said Dr. Rogers views about treatment were diametrically opposed to the normal concept of disease. Children, like everyone else, must have protein to live and under Dr. Rogers' diet the boy got 300 to 400 calories instead of a minimum of 1,000.

Dr. Harold Kravel, a pediatrician, said he had seen the boy prior to his visits to Dr. Rogers and the youngster was in good condition except for the skin condition.

"I saw him next just before he died. There was a marked deterioration."

The final hours of testimony resulted in a better exchange between the father and Dr. Rogers.

"He demanded $150 for three months' services," said the father, "and I took the money up the next day. The diet he gave me was cabbage, celery, green peppers, radishes, peppers and another item and half a grapefruit for breakfast."

The boy ate the grapefruit, he said, but the parents had to force him to eat the ground vegetables.

He said that on June 10, the day before his son died, he called Dr. Rogers at home and told him his hands, feet and stomach were swollen and his eyes clouded.

Rogers told me he had done all he could, and couldn't put life in him, and to take him to the hospital if we wished.

Mr. Dimosten turned to Dr. Rogers and said:

"I took him to you because his skin wasn't getting better. But he could run, play and smile. After you saw him, he lost his smile in a week."

"You told me to follow you 100 per cent and not to listen to the other stupid doctors. You used to tell me about the fat cows eating only green grass and the gorillas in Africa eating nuts—but you didn't think the baby had to eat milk."

"I'd like to put you on the diet, doc."

Longshoremen Gain Publicity

PORT ALBERNI — "The presidents of the locals in jail is probably the best thing that has ever happened for the rest of us," explained one Alberni Valley longshoreman Monday.

He added, "but I sure hate to think of Laing Mackie and the rest of them stuck in there for three months."

The president of the Alberni Valley local of the Longshoremen's Union is one of 10 men imprisoned for contempt of court.

Fishermen Protest

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has sent telegrams to Attorney General Bonner and Federal Justice Minister Cardia protesting Mr. Justice Verbeke's decision which sent ten Longshoremen to jail for three months.

The wires stated that the men were being jailed " . . . for upholding the basic freedom of their membership to refuse to work on statutory holidays."

U.F.A.W.U. officers cite the fact that Longshoremen work under Federal Labour Laws while the contempt proceedings were initiated by the Attorney General Robert Bonner.

Queries among local longshoremen showed that while some were at a loss to understand what the executives were trying to prove by taking the jail term instead of the fine, others felt "priceless publicity will place our problems in front of the public."

From Vancouver, a direct appeal is being sent to Queen Elizabeth to grant a Royal Pardon to the 10 officials of the Longshoremen's Union, who chose to serve three-month jail terms rather than pay fines totalling $4,100 for contempt of court.

PROTEST

The convictions arose from the officials' failure to obey an injunction ordering them to countermand any instructions for a work stoppage on Victoria Day.

The 10 said they deliberately took the course of civil disobedience to protest what they termed "an unjust law."

Decision to ask the Queen for clemency was made by delegates to a special convention of the B.C. Federation of Labor, who complained that virtually all injunctions applied for by employers involved in labor disputes with unions in the past 10 years were granted, while most union requests for injunctions against employers were rejected.

In Ottawa, New Democratic MPs asked Labor Minister Nicholson Monday to speed up his study of labor legislation that spells out holidays with pay.

'We're Not Heartless'

Masako's Visit Gets Clearance

A change of heart by immigration authorities, plus support from MP David Gross, has cleared the clouds from Masako Endo's planned visit in Victoria.

Immigration authorities said Monday they will recommend to Ottawa that the 19-year-old Tokyo office clerk be allowed to visit Canada four months without a visa.

Mr. Gross, Liberal member of Parliament for Victoria, told Miss Endo's host, John Collins, 1071 Gosper Crescent, that he would take up the girl's case with the immigration department in Ottawa.

Miss Endo arrived in Vancouver Friday on her way to Victoria for a four-month stay, and was detained on a technicality.

NOT HEARTLESS

She had intended to stay here four months, but because she lacked a visa, immigration authorities said she must be deported. Pacific Coast immigration chief R. L. Hawkins said Monday that he would recommend to Ottawa that Miss Endo be allowed to stay four months.

"Immigration people are not a heartless lot of red-tape crazy bureaucrats," said Mr. Hawkins.

Mr. Gross phoned Mr. Collins Sunday to get the facts of the case, and said he would fight for Miss Endo.

Office, Rehearsal Hall Needed by Symphony

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Good home wanted! House-trained musicians and conductor forced to vacate, need office and rehearsal hall.

This sign may go up at the Victoria Symphony offices on Pandora Avenue Aug. 1, when group will be forced to leave its present quarters at the Victoria School of Music.

Expansion of the school has forced the symphony to seek other accommodation.

St. Michael's School also needs the space the musicians have been using for a rehearsal hall.

The problem is, as usual with the symphony, lack of funds. The orchestra hopes some businessman with a large empty warehouse or basement will come to the rescue, at minimal cost or as a donation.

The matter will probably be discussed at the society's annual meeting Wednesday at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, when retiring president Jack Barracough will introduce his mystery successor.

So far, the members of the symphony board who follow in line of succession for the top job have declined, and Mr. Barracough has had to search for his own successor.

Window Washing Saturates 10 City Hall Offices

By A. H. MURPHY

City Hall got its windows washed over the weekend.

The results were beyond its wildest dreams.

Ten offices on the west side of the building, including those of City Engineer James Garnet and Personnel Manager S. T. Fitzpatrick, were flooded to a greater or lesser degree.

Rugs were soaked and there were pools of water on the floor. Papers and documents were saturated, and in some offices floor tiling was damaged, officials said.

City Manager Dennis Young, Maintenance Superintendent John Marshall and other officials held a council-of-war and ordered a mop-up. Then they began to inquire into the cause of the mess.

Window washers, it seemed, were to blame.

Window-washing has been a sensitive area at City Hall since a recent article in The Daily Colonist pointed out that, because of council indecision and waffling, the windows on Victoria's public buildings had not been washed for six months.

Seemingly spurred by the story, Ald. Cecil Parrott, chairman of the public works committee, ordered a "one-shot" job on the windows until aldermen could make up their minds whether to let the cleaning contract out or have the work done by city employees.

Window-washers moved in Friday and began to clean the grime off the windows, on some of which, at ground level adjacent to Centennial Square, small boys had been playing noughts and crosses.

The work was done Saturday when City Hall is closed.

Using a long pipe arrangement, with a brush on the end through which water is jetted under pressure, the washers attacked the west side of the building.

City Manager Young said Monday that the pressure equipment used was designed for sealed-sash, metal-framed windows, and not for the rickety, chinked sashes on windows in the old section of the City Hall complex.

The windows were nice and clean when the workmen finished, and the offices full of water.

It all came to light on Monday morning.

Mr. Young said Monday that the city might seek damages from the window-washing company.

$1,000,000 Promised Crown Says

The trial of an Esquimalt woman whom the prosecution says repaid loans from strangers with cheques totalling more than $1,000,000 when she had little or no money in the bank opened in County Court Monday.

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, pleaded not guilty before Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake to four charges of fraud involving a total of $12,073.

The trial, described by Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm as the "bizarre case" of a woman who seemed to exercise a "mesmeric power" over people who loaned her money, will continue at 10:30 a.m. today in the Victoria Law Courts.

Eight witnesses were heard Monday and hundreds of thousands of dollars in promissory notes and cheques purporting to be signed by the accused were entered as exhibits.

Mrs. Naylor, tall and grey-haired, sat quietly and showed little emotion as the prosecution unfolded its case against her.

She is charged with fraudulently obtaining $500 from Jack Spelt in June, 1965, $9,973 from Reginald Graves in June, 1965, $1,000 from Mrs. Julian Plottie in September, 1965, and $600 from Mrs. Doreen Finn in September, 1965.

Court was advised by a statement from Saanich police that when Mrs. Naylor was arrested and taken to the police station on Nov. 2, 1965, she admitted signing her name to some $650,000 to $900,000 in cheques and promissory notes, but claimed that she had only borrowed about $10,000.

Saanich Det. John Stone told the court Mrs. Naylor admitted making "one debt to pay another" for a period of "about five years."

Promissory Notes

He said she told the police she had thought she was going to receive about $750,000 from the settlement of an uncle's estate, but that for some 10 weeks before being arrested she was aware her uncle was destitute when he died.

Det. Stone's testimony was corroborated by Saanich Det. Robert Peterson, who helped bring the woman into custody. Mr. Lindholm said at the beginning of the trial the Crown would show that Mrs. Naylor received $12,214, of which she made restitution of $178.

He said the accused would approach total strangers and ask them for short-term loans until her uncle's estate could be probated in Washington, Montana, Illinois or California.

Mrs. Naylor would normally ask for a small amount of money and give the lender a promissory note which she would ask him not to cash until a certain date, Mr. Lindholm said.

On the day appointed, she would show up again, say there had been a delay and ask for more money, the prosecutor told the court.

This system reached the most "extraordinary limits" in the case of Graves, he said, when cheques totalling more than $1,000,000 were given in return for a loan.

First witness was Mrs. Molly Medcalf, 1960 Varsity Place. She said she and her husband made a three-day, $300 loan to Mrs. Naylor, a former neighbor, on Aug. 27, 1965.

In October of the same year, she was given a $20,000 cheque in repayment, but was subsequently asked not to cash it because the inheritance had not yet come through.

Mrs. Medcalf also said Mrs. Naylor talked her into writing a cheque for $25,000, which the latter promised to return after showing it to a man to prove she had some money with which to buy a house.

Bits and Pieces

Although Mrs. Naylor telephoned to say she had torn up the cheque, detectives brought it around to the Medcalf house during their investigations in November.

The same $25,000 cheque was identified by garage operator Jack Spelt, 870 Royal Oak Avenue, as one shown him by Mrs. Naylor to prove she had money coming in.

Spelt said he was concerned about the nearly $100 which Mrs. Naylor owed him, and that "I believed her when she showed me this cheque." He said the accused eventually gave him the cheque, and that he turned it over to the police after making an inquiry about it at a bank.

The garage operator said Mrs. Naylor, then a stranger, showed up in a taxi in June, 1965, and asked for $500 to go to Montana to settle an estate.

Mr. Spelt said he went to the bank and got the money, and handed it over on the understanding it would be repaid the following week.

He said Mrs. Naylor gave him a cheque for $1,000 and guaranteed there would be enough money to cover it by a certain date. But the day before the cheque was to be cashed, the woman appeared to say there was difficulty with lawyers and currency exchange in Seattle, and that it would take a little longer.

Twice since that time, he gave her $100 and on other occasions "bits and pieces like $25 or $35 . . . I didn't keep track," he said.

Inheritance Coming

John Percy Holmes, 72, of 3965 Malton Avenue, who knew the accused "since she was a teen-ager," told the court Mrs. Naylor had borrowed about $3,000 from him since 1961 and that he repaid him $270 in periodic installments.

Cross-examined by Dermot Owen-Flood, counsel for the defence, Mr. Holmes said he received a total of about $25,000 in cheques and promissory notes from the accused, but that "all I told her I want is just the money back I loaned her."

He said he first loaned Mrs. Naylor the money in 1961 because she told him she "had an inheritance coming which

Non-Teachers Reject Offer

Non-teaching employees of the Greater Victoria School District rejected a compromise wage offer by the school board Sunday.

The employees, more than 200 janitors and maintenance men in district schools, will make a counter-offer to the board at a meeting tonight, said spokesman John Byrne.

District Preparing New Library Pact

A new library agreement — the fourth one — is being prepared for consideration by the city and the municipalities, Reeve Hugh Curtis told Saanich council Monday night.

He said a meeting of the mayor and Reeves Monday afternoon decided a new agreement was needed.

Coun. Alan Newberry said after the council meeting that he believed the library board should be called the Public Library Board of Greater Victoria.

NOT CITY BOARD

Coun. Newberry is Saanich representative on the library board.

"In view of the attitude of the city about the ownership of the library, I think it most important that the new board not be called the Public Library Board for the City of Victoria."

Council endorsed a Greater Victoria juvenile detention home committee's resolution asking the provincial government to provide immediately a fully staffed treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children.

UNBURNED

Coun. Edith Gunnar told council that the home committee was greatly disturbed by the increasing number of emotionally disturbed children in the area.

She pointed out the lack of long-term treatment facilities for these children in Victoria.

Reeve Curtis observed it might be beneficial to incorporate such a treatment centre with the proposed hospital for retarded children to be built in Saanich.

REZONING APPROVED

Council approved the rezoning bid for the New Democratic rooms to be built near Tillamook and the Trans-Canada Highway.

It also decided to hold a public hearing on an application to build a commercial swimming pool and playground on about four acres at the southeast corner of McKenzie and Glanford.

'Life and Property' Issue in Esquimalt

By JIM BRAHAN

Esquimalt ratepayers should demand to know the recent fire and police survey report recommendations, the regional vice-president of the International Association of Firefighters said Monday.

"The life and property of the citizens of the community are being threatened by the attitude of Esquimalt council," Gordon Anderson of Vancouver said after a meeting in Victoria with the Esquimalt Police Union executives.

SURVEY DEMAND
"Every citizen and property owner has the right to know what is in the fire marshal's report."

"Any survey dealing with the safety of the community must not be allowed to be kept a secret. All civic-minded groups and the news media should demand to know the recommendations of these surveys."

DON'T TOY

"Once the citizens of the community are made aware of all the facts in this problem I feel sure they will instruct the council to stop toying with such a vital subject as the protection of the lives and property of every man, woman and child in the area," he said.

Former Esquimalt councillor Bert Nelson agreed Monday that the recommendations should be made public.

"If it was done with public funds it should be public property," he said. "I as a taxpayer want to know what I'm paying for."

"I'd like to see both sides of the picture."

LEGALITY QUESTIONED

The Esquimalt police union claims the 12-year-old practice of doubling as firefighters is legally untenable because the police commission hires and fires constables, and only the municipal council can deal with firefighters.

The Esquimalt police will ask the B.C. Supreme Court for a ruling on the legality of the double role worked by the 22-man force.

Seascope Wins Contest

Winner in window-painting contest for Esquimalt's Baccarat Day was seascope by R. E. Williams, left, proprietor of Gail's Salon for Beauty, 912 Esquimalt. He and his sister Laura, 6, are shown beside painting. Mr. Williams won $50 cash prize donated by Imperial Tobacco Co. Honorable mentions went to Leonard Richard and Elmay Crow. — (William E. John)

Scottish Games Draw Victorians

Two Victorians and three Albertans will form the Canadian contingent at the 34th Southern California Scottish Games in Santa Monica Saturday.

Angus MacKenzie of 1912 Alenby Street and Cathie Gower of 1461 Yale Street will be among about 500 contestants.

Young Cyclist's Secret

Boil Felt Hat, Then Fold It in Four

If anyone wants a funny floppy painted hat, Paul Grueter will make one out of a perfectly normal felt hat for half a dollar.

Paul is the unofficial mad hatter of the Portland Pathfinders, a church group spending its fifth annual camping and bicycling holiday in Victoria.

They didn't cycle all the way from Oregon. Trailers brought the bikes as far as Anacortes, and pedal power took over for a stay on San Juan Island and then the party of 32 arrived here.

THETIS LAKE
The youngsters and their leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Montgomery, have been camped in neat pup tents at Thetis Lake Trailer Park since Sunday, and leave Wednesday for Orcas Island.

There they plan to reach the top of Mount Constitution, 2,400 feet. They got in a little practice here by mistake, when misunderstood directions sent them pedalling to the top of Mount Newton, 1,000 feet.

Ellen Montgomery, whose six children are keen members of the party, thinks all the exercise is a very good thing.

VEGETABLES

"We've got 16 and 17-year-old girls with us," she said. "They put on weight, but their waists get smaller."

Pathfinders, with leader Forrest Montgomery and camp operator, Ada Jamieson

Portland Youth Holiday

All the travellers eat heartily, mostly simple meals "because we don't want to spend all our time cooking." Fresh fruit and vegetables are their staples, since meat is frowned on by the Seventh Day Adventist church. Non-members go along with the rest.

The youngsters notice little things that are different in Canada: "No Through Road" instead of "Dead End" struck them as hilarious. Country mailboxes pointing at the road instead of parallel to it struck them as an excellent idea.

FANCY BIKES
What the natives notice about them is usually their bikes, mostly glittering 10-speed models.

And the hats, of course, made by boiling the originals and folding them in four. Paul will do it for 50 cents.

Soviet Seaman Recovering

Injured Russian seaman Georgy Frolov is in a good condition in Veterans' Hospital.

He suffered a head injury April 25 when he fell while at sea on the Russian fishing vessel Indigirka.

Ont. The couple was married in Dorion. They moved to Victoria in 1961. There are five children, Ralph, at Princeton; Wray at Port Arthur; Lorne, Lorette (Mrs. J. Skufa) and Marion (Mrs. L. Ward) of Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Broughton have 15 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. Mrs. Skufa made the cake in the picture for her parents' golden wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Watts, 266 Atkins Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter Dorothy Jean to Mr. Harvey Eric Chipper, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Chipper, 2717 Spencer Road. The marriage will take place at 7:30 p.m., June 30, in St. Matthew's Church. —(Jolley)

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Arthur Streeton, 2571 Cook Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Beverley Frances, to Mr. Ian Douglas Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Fraser, 2026 Romney Road. The wedding will take place at 7 p.m., June 30 in St. Mary's Anglican Church, with Canon Hywel Jones officiating. —(Gibson's)

To Award Prizes

At a recent meeting of the Navy League Chapter, IODE, it was reported that ten letters had been received by the Chapter's educational secretary from the Indian school at Hartley Bay.

Two book prizes will be awarded to local students for proficiency in Canadian history. Ten nursery bags will be filled for overseas and a token donation has been sent to the Municipal Chapter for a violin student to continue his studies abroad.

The meeting was held at headquarters with Mrs. C. E. Biernes, regent, in the chair. Services convenor, Mrs. E.

Downing, gave out material for members to sew quilts for overseas.

A bingo game will be held late in July.

from the B.C. tree fruit growers

This season there will be ample supplies of all Okanagan tree fruits.

B.C. orchards have made a remarkable recovery from last year's damaging frost, and all your favourite B.C. fruits will be back in plentiful supply . . . Cherries, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Crabapples and Prune Plums.

B.C. fruit arrives on the market a little later than fruit from farther south, but as always, it will be well worth waiting for. Grown closer to "home", B.C. fruit offers many advantages:

- The quality will be excellent
- Orchard fresh — rushed direct from the Okanagan to your favourite store
- B.C. fruit has high sugar content and fuller flavour because it can be left on the trees longer
- "Peak of the season" case-lot prices mean extra special savings

Once again you can plan a full program of home-preserving B.C. fruit. For the best fruit at the best prices . . . be sure to wait for, and insist on, "B.C." preserving fruit.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Every community has its quota of chiselers who bum rides to work from the friendly neighbor. They always have a fancy assortment of excuses for not driving their own cars but they fool no one. They are simply saving money on gas, wear and tear on their tires, and sometimes parking money.

The other day I had such a character in my car — fifth time that week. What started out as a light drizzle turned into a cloudburst. The visibility was zero and we nearly had an accident. Fortunately, we arrived at our destination without incident.

The office manager, hearing me tell about the close call, said, "I never take my neighbors to work in the morning — I don't want the responsibility. If a passenger is hurt he could sue the socks off you. I've seen it happen."

Someone else said that if he had a car he would make the passengers sign a piece of paper, relieving the driver of all legal responsibility, in case of an accident.

Would such a piece of paper be valid? Does it make sense to you? — MR. ACCOMMODATOR

Dear Mr.: A signed statement absolving the driver of responsibility in case of an accident may or may not be valid — depending on the state you live in. If you were to ask the free loaders to sign such an agreement, however, it might discourage them from bumming rides.

I assume you are a prudent driver so this won't apply to you, but: The passenger who rides with a careless driver just because it's free should get his head examined and sometimes does — in the hospital after the accident.

Dear Readers: Ten lashes with a wet noodle won't do this time. That would be letting me off much too lightly.

I refer to the counsel I offered "Redding Rose" — the woman who said she could not get up before a group and give her name and address without shaking for half an hour. My advice: "If there is a Toastmaster's Club in your town, join it."

Well, dear folks, if Rose makes the grade, she'll be the first woman who ever did. The Toastmaster's Club is for men only.

I should have told her to join the Toastmistress' Club. Today my face is redder than any Rose in Redding. — ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Help please. My husband is in the Navy and this is the first time we have lived out of Navy housing.

Every few days some neighbor asks me to buy eggs, butter, milk, cigarettes, coffee and what not — because I can get these commodities for a lot less at the Navy commissary than she pays in the supermarket. I hate to say no, because I go every few days for my own groceries, and everyone knows it. However, if I am caught buying for my neighbors I will lose my commissary privileges.

Please print my letter so my neighbors will see it and stop asking me to break the rules. Thank you. — NAVY WIFE

Dear Wife: Here's your letter, but don't expect miracles. You

Bride Carries Gardenias

Of interest in Victoria is word of the recent marriage of Isobel Anne Wilson and Mrs. Paul Fielding Scott, both of Toronto.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wilson of Birkhead, Eng. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Scott of Nanaimo and the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Scott of Craigdarroch Road, Victoria. Mr. Scott's great grandfather was one of the pioneer druggists in Victoria, Mr. Thomas Sholtz.

Rev. T. P. Croshawalt performed the ceremony in the Church of St. Clement. The bride chose an Italian tulle dress dotted with dainty lace appliques and she carried white gardenias and stephanotis.

Mrs. Michael Kovacs, matron of honor and Miss Carol Madden, bridesmaid, were in identical empire styled gowns of pale pink organza over tulle, with shocking pink ribbon trim. They carried pink carnations and roses.

Noel Wilson was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Norman Baird and Stuart Wilson.

Following a reception at the Wedgewood Restaurant, Bloor Street, the bride changed to a pink boucle dress with matching jacket and navy accessories. The couple left for a honeymoon in New England and Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott will make their home in Don Mills, Ont. Among out of town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Scott of Nanaimo.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec R. Merriman announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Mary Lucille to Mr. Clayton F. Sidlick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Sidlick, 2547 Blanshard Street. The wedding will take place on Friday, July 8 at 8 p.m. in St. Matthew's Church at Langford. — (Robin Clarke)

Changing Silhouette In All-Weather Coats

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — A changing silhouette appeared in a series of all-weather coats that opened Lydia Fashions' preview of fall and winter sports clothes.

The coats—in corduroy, water-repellent velvet, cotton suede and fake fur—were ripped in at the waist and had short flared skirts.

The low back belt, popular with rainwear designers, was moved up to, or just below, the waist. Most coats were double-breasted with wide lapels. Loose coats were shown belted.

Colors included regal blues, emerald greens, burgundies to purples and browns.

MATCHED FABRICS
Hats were bobbies or helmet variations and high boots of matching fabric were worn with the coats.

Fake furs included black Russian broadtail, fox and mink. Vinyl, still popular and not quite so stiff, was used for a number of serviceable rain coats.

A new nylon stretch fabric from France was used for shiny crinkle patterned coats that looked quilted.

These came in red and black designs and in a black, purple and pink pattern.

Show-stoppers were gold and silver vinyl. In gold was an intrigue-type raincoat. In silver was a fox-trimmed jacket and pants set. Both came with matching boots.

Ski and after-ski clothes included plaid blanket ponchos, with and without sleeves, an astronaut's suit of black vinyl, bell-bottom ski pants and a white ensemble with turquoise crocheted cuffs and collar.

Colorful head trim were used for many ski costumes and set off the series of miniskirts meant for the slopes.

Skirts were two to three inches above the knee and were meant for wear with leotards or textured stockings.

One mini-skirt set came in bright orange with black military fastenings. The skirt was also bound in black.

A red ski jacket came in a lightweight nylon basket weave. Another nylon jacket was in a pebble print and looked like plastic.

Diamonds for 'Something Old'

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated at the marriage of Richard Dale Courser, which took place in St. Luke's Parish Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. A. Robertson of Ladysmith and the late Mr. Charles E. White. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Courser, Mortimer Street, Victoria.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather Mr. J. Norman Champion. She wore a floor-length gown of white nylon over tulle, styled with a bell-shaped skirt. Her chapel veil fell from a rosette of pearls and stephanotis and something old was her great grandmother's diamond bracelet.

Sewing meetings will be continued during the summer months. The next one will be held today at the home of Mrs. D. Smith, 627 Bryden Court, Esquimalt.

A trip to Vancouver is planned July 30. Mrs. W. Syrett is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. T. Young visited 37 patients in various hospitals in May and Mrs. A. Mayes reported $165.05 was raised for funds the same month.

No meetings will be held in July and August.

Let. She also wore a gold pendant, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. James Anfield was matron of honor for her cousin and the bride's sister, Margaret White, was bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of pink organza and they carried pink and white carnations. The bride gave her attendants pearl earrings and necklaces.

Groomsmen were Robert Courser, brother of the groom and Allen White, the bride's brother.

The groom's twin brother's David and Darrel Courser were ushers.

If you think you don't need disability insurance, you haven't seen the statistics.

Of 1000 persons aged 35, 83% will be disabled by illness or injury—for three months or more—before they reach age 65. That's what the statistics show.

What kind of a statistic will you be? It makes sense to look into a Manufacturers Life Personal Income Protector Plan. Nothing can give you such peace of mind as the sure knowledge that if you are disabled and cannot work, a guaranteed income will come your way.

Our Plan has many advantages. It offers you a wide flexibility in amount of income and the length of time it will be paid. For example; you may be able to arrange for income benefits right through to age 65 for total disability due to sickness or for life when an accident is the cause. Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

Ed Wynn Made Millions Laugh

Famed Perfect Fool Dies in Sleep at 79

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedian-actor Ed Wynn, 79, who entertained the world for years, died in his sleep at home Sunday, a victim of cancer.

His son, actor Keenan Wynn, said his father had been in failing health for a year, although he remained active until a few months ago. Earlier this year, he appeared on Red Skelton's television show, made a candy commercial and played a role in Walt Disney's The Gnomobile.

"In March dad went to Washington for the American Parkinson's Disease Association, his favorite charity," Keenan said. "He did it shows in two days. When he came home from that trip, he began to show the results of the cancer."

The elder Wynn had been operated on for a tumor in his neck, and the tumor was found to be malignant. He spent the last three months in his Wilshire Boulevard apartment.

"During his last three months he wouldn't let his three young granddaughters come to see him," said his son. "His appearance had changed, and he couldn't talk."

"He wanted them to remember him as the roly-poly funny-man."

Ed Wynn's 64 years as an entertainer brought him triumphs in every medium of show business. For half a century he provoked the laughter of millions as The Perfect Fool. Then, when it seemed the vogue had passed him by, he turned serious and became a fine character actor.

Among his roles: Uncle Samson in Marjorie Morningstar;

Ed Wynn

Diary of Anne Frank (for which he was nominated for an Academy Award); the blind man in The Greatest Story Ever Told.

Wynn ran away from his Philadelphia home at 16 to join a travelling repertoire company. His father, a hat manufacturer, so objected to his son's choice of profession that he insisted on a name change to avoid family disgrace. Born Edwin Leopold, the young performer fashioned his billing from his given name.

As Ed Wynn, he soon starred in vaudeville and moved easily into Broadway shows, making his debut in the Ziegfeld Follies of 1914. He wrote, directed and produced such Broadway hits as Ed Wynn Carnival, The Perfect Fool (which became his sobriquet thereafter), Laugh Parade and Hokey for What.

STARRED AS FIRECHIEF

Wynn's first impact on a mass audience came when he starred on radio as The Firechief. His sly giggle, falsetto voice and outrageous way with a pun made him a national favorite. He was also one of the early stars of television.

Keenan urged his father to try dramatic when it appeared that his comic talents were no longer in demand.

In an article for The Associated Press, Wynn explained his method of combatting old age: "I feel I have always had a Peter Pan mind. I have thought of myself as young all my life, and I still feel that way."

Non-denominational funeral services will be held Thursday. The body was cremated in accordance with Wynn's wishes. His will, written a month ago, left most of his estate to Keenan.

Wynn, who was married three times, is survived by Keenan and Keenan's five children.

Church Admits Women Elders

CULROSS, Scotland (AP)—Seven women have been admitted as elders of the Church of Scotland, the first of their sex to hold the position. The church's general assembly authorized the appointment of women elders at a recent meeting in Edinburgh.

Rev. A. Q. Morton, minister of Culross Abbey, said in a sermon: "Since the time of Paul the place of women in the church has been twofold — to wear a hat in church and shut up."

Scholarships Replacing Loans?

OTTAWA (CP)—A cabinet minister looked ahead Monday to the day the Commons might consider converting the Canada Student Loans Act into a scholarship fund.

John Turner, minister without portfolio, also said he hoped the loan plan eventually would be broadened to include students attending university at night or on a part-time basis "because they're particularly deserving."

He made the observations during debate on a bill to amend the act. The amendment would increase federal aid to $38,000,000 from $42,000,000 for loans made in the 1965-66 academic year.

ADJOURNED
The bill, up for second reading—approval in principle—proposes giving the finance minister discretionary power to dole out up to 20 per cent of the new $38,000,000 maximum fund to provinces that already had received their basic allotment in any year. It was adjourned without a vote.

Allotments are reached on the basis of a province's population in the 18-to-24 age bracket. Maximum individual loan is $1,000 a year up to a $5,000 total for a student. Banks and certain other lending bodies act as the government's agents for making loans, which are repayable after graduation at bank interest rates.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker chided Mr. Turner for his comments which should have been made "at the appropriate time"—before cabinet. It was "without precedent" that a minister should oppose government policy in the Commons. Mr. Turner denied he was speaking against the loan bill. He supported it but thought it proper to comment on areas where the plan might logically be improved later.

Other measures now such as medical care insurance and the Canada Pension Plan took priority. But with the increasing needs for higher education the Commons should look ahead.

He hoped there could eventually be a move "gradually to wards elimination of student fees... for all types of education at all levels." This could include vocational and technical training programs.

Economic blocks remain for many students. Some 52 per cent of Canadian families made about $5,000 annually, but only 28 per cent of university students came from homes with this income ceiling.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) recommended a go-slow policy on loan programs because of the "regrettable number of students who should not be at university for academic reasons."

Rather than pressing for free tuition, as advocated by the New Democratic Party, the stress should be on getting money for university construction and facilities and raising the pay of the teaching staff. It was time "we got our heads out of the clouds."

Maurice Allard (Ind.—PC—Sherbrooke) said the bill is unconstitutional. The British North America Act gave the provinces responsibility for education. The federal government was trying to do indirectly what it could not do directly.

He suggested the central government return tax fields it took from the provinces. In this way, the provinces would be able to discharge their responsibilities for education.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Dagby—Annapolis—Kings) said figures show that the loan fund is being used in all parts of Canada. It was doing the job it had been designed to do—help children of lower-income families get a higher education.

Council Accepts Strike Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP)—They will start cleaning up the mess in Vancouver today.

City council in a special meeting Monday accepted terms that will end a six-week strike of outside workers. The workers accepted the terms Sunday.

The city has been without garbage collection, street cleaning and park maintenance. Garbage has piled up and smelled — high in back alleys; parks and city-owned golf courses have gone untended.

PICTURE BLANK
The settlement of that strike was about the only rosy picture in the otherwise troubled British Columbia labor scene where 46,000 union members were on strike or at various stages of negotiations.

Some 10,000 members of the American (CLC) were still on an unofficial strike that started last week when workers became impatient with prolonged wage negotiations.

The outside workers accepted a settlement that gave them an increase of $2.5 cents an hour in a two-year contract. The present base rate is $2.25.

The settlement was proposed by Professor Ray Herbert of the University of B.C., another government-appointed inquiry commissioner.

MANY NEGOTIATING
Prof. Herbert still must deal with a strike of 700 municipal workers in neighboring North Vancouver. The workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have been out in a wage dispute for three weeks.

Unions representing a vast array of workers — carpenters, miners, pulp and paper workers among others — are in various stages of negotiation.

The general unrest was reflected in a bitter charge by a labor spokesman during the weekend.

Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver and District Labor Council (CLC), charged that judges are "political hacks" and the "law" is an ass.

His speech, which warned of a long summer of litigation involving labor disputes and expected requests for injunctions, preceded a decision by the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC) to collect $230,000 through special assessment of members.

The money will be added to a $14,000 Federation fund used to help workers needing money for such things as strike pay and legal fees.

Ships to Attend Vancouver Show

Three ships of the Pacific Maritime Command will take part in the annual Vancouver sea festival this week.

The anti-submarine destroyer, HMCS Qu'Appelle and the ocean-esort HMCS Sussorvale will leave Esquimalt Wednesday morning. They will remain in Vancouver until June 27.

They will be at anchor in English Bay Wednesday and Thursday nights, along with five visiting ships from the U.S. Navy. On both evenings they will be illuminated and foodlit between 10 p.m. and midnight.

On Friday morning all the ships will leave English Bay and proceed in formation into Vancouver harbor. Aboard the RCN ships for that brief voyage will be members of the Vancouver branch of the Naval Officers' Association of Canada and groups of Vancouver businessmen.

Led by the naval band of Naden, from CFB Esquimalt, a large number of contingents from the visiting ships will take part in the festival parade to be held through downtown Vancouver Saturday morning.

That day and Sunday the ships will be open to visitors between 1 and 4 p.m. They will be berthed at Vancouver's Central pier.

Good Deal for City

Slum Clean-Up on Budget

By JAMES BONNEY

A city can budget for removal of slum areas in the same way that it budgets for sewers, roads or any other service, Geoffrey Greenhalgh, head of Victoria's community planning department, told members of the Gyro Club on Monday.

Not only that, said Mr. Greenhalgh, but it can recover its share of the cost (25 per cent) in the increased taxes that urban renewal will bring to the municipal treasury.

"For a down payment of $100,000, a city can generate $1,200,000 worth of urban renewal, of which the federal government will pay one-half and the province one-quarter. That leaves only 25 per cent for the municipality — a good deal," the speaker said.

The federal government will loan the municipality two-thirds of the $100,000 it must contribute, at an interest rate of 5 1/2 per cent, repayments to be made over 15 years.

This works out to about $20,000 a year for the municipality, which would be more than offset by enhanced tax revenues from the improved area.

"It's a continuing process and it could be budgeted for like any other service," the speaker said.

Such is the role of the municipal government, and if improvements made in Victoria in the past few years are a criterion, this council is aware of the opportunity and ready to go ahead.

But there was a challenge to private enterprise, Mr. Greenhalgh said. It must be prepared to step in and exploit the renewed area.

The machinery for all this lay in a 1964 amendment to the National Housing Act. This tool must be made full use of not only by the municipal government but by private enterprise, he said. The challenge was there, and it was up to private capital to take it up.

Snow Hits Sea Resort

MOSCOW (AP) — Tourists at the Soviet Black Sea resort of Sochi, mostly in light summer clothing, were caught in a snowstorm in the mountains behind the city last week, the Soviet youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said Sunday.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and easily relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months. This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Smoking Blamed For Fires

Smouldering cigarettes are believed to have been responsible for two house fires Sunday morning.

Paul Mulholland, his wife and three children were sent fleeing from their home at 528 Simas when fire destroyed the ground floor.

A suite at 35 Obed was damaged by fire at 2:27 a.m. Sunday.

FOUSED BY SMOKE

Mrs. Eleanor Mulholland said she smelt of smoke woke her at a.m. Sunday. She found the house filled with smoke, she and her husband and children fled. Soon afterward gas pressure in the house blew out windows and flames licked through the lower floor.

Firemen said a cigarette apparently set a chestfield smouldering. About $3,000 damage was done to the house and about $3,000 to the furnishings, which were not insured.

MATRESS FIRE

The Mulhollands spent the rest of the night with a relative in Duncan.

Saanich firemen said a cigarette was believed to have started a mattress fire in Wallace Munroe's suite at 24 Obed.

The suite's walls, floor and door coverings were destroyed. An estimation of the damage was not available.

Saanich Jerseys Winners

Six Saanich Jersey cows have been awarded Canadian Jersey cattle Club ton-of-gold certificates.

Bubbacombe Heritage Mary, owned by P. B. Hoole and sons, 946 Oldfield, was awarded her second ton of gold certificate for producing 2,215 pounds of fat in 1,299 days.

In the same herd, Dogwood Heritage Marie, holder of two silver medals, five gold medals, and a ton of gold certificate, was awarded her second certificate for producing 2,135 pounds of fat in 1,019 days.

In the same herd, Glenhagan Royal Melody, Glenhagan Royal Victoria, and Glenhagan Royalist Pixie, were all awarded ton of gold certificates.

Chuckles Wins Friends For Shrine Circus

Chuckles the Clown may have a large following of young admirers, but none more ardent than the Grade 1 pupils at North Ward School.

Chuckles, who is in town to tell everyone about Rudy Brothers Circus, stopped by the school yard when the pupils were outside for a physical education session. He brought that to a fast halt.

After a quick quiz to see just who in the class were doing their best to study and who were on their best behavior, Chuckles fluffed up his fright wig and asked them all to be his guests at the show in the Memorial Arena Friday and Saturday.

URGED JUNE WEDDINGS

The early Christians encouraged May and June weddings, because the clergy frowned on marriages during Lent and other periods of fasting and penitence.

After the giggles had subsided, Chuckles handed out a pass for the show to each child, and then invited the teacher, too. This season's circus offers a full bill of brand new acts.

School of Music

Progress Obvious

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Student concerts for the most part follow a pattern. Tykes troop out in best bibs and tuckers and clobber the classics while a packed house of friends and relations throws caution and musical discretion to the wind in a hurricane of applause.

Sunday afternoon pupils from the Victoria School of Music proved to a full floor at the McPherson Playhouse that student concerts need not follow this cliché.

A dozen of the school's most advanced students gave an afternoon of enjoyment and at the same time proved just what progress the school has made since its last concert.

PRESIDENT SURPRISED

John Graeme, president of the school shook his head in wonderment during the intermission, and his appreciation was genuine.

Certainly there were some flubs and a few bum notes, but then these youngsters are not getting the audience exposure they need and deserve. Provision must be made for more student concerts if these talented youngsters are to get the confidence and presence that only exposure to a live audience can bring.

It would be quite unfair to single out individual performances at a concert of this type, but it was obvious the school has made great progress during the last 12 months.

The happy combination of generous angels and the sound musical judgment of director Robin Wood has been rewarded in a really worthwhile school.

Happiness must surely be Robin Wood and his new Steinway. He had a fine time playing for violinist Vivienne Abbott, who is showing more confidence and polish each time she plays.

Concert-goers will have an opportunity to hear these two in concert again Wednesday, when they offer the Cesar Franck work for piano and violin at the Victoria Symphony Society annual meeting at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria at 7:30 p.m.

More Concerts Needed

Performers during the concert in order of appearance were: Trudi Conrad, violin; Madeleine Groos, piano; Janis Lee, cello; Mary Chard, piano; Lance Stevenson, trumpet; Sylvia Warburton, piano; Mary Chard; Jocelyn Abbott, Judy Warkentin, and Juliette De Goutiere, violin quartet; Anne Jeffrey, piano; Anne Metrakos, flute; Jocelyn Abbott, piano; Barbara Court, violin; and Colin Barneau, piano.

Prized Violin Crushed

MONTREAL (CP) — The concert-master of the Verdi Festival Orchestra, Mr. Piovesan, once was the owner of two fine violins—one a Guarneri insured for $40,000.

Sunday was dress rehearsal day for the festival, opening Tuesday at Place des Arts concert hall. So he decided to bring his best violin, the Guarneri insured for $40,000.

The prized instrument had been placed aside for a moment, near where the conductor was standing, and the conductor's music stand collapsed onto it.

Mr. Piovesan, in tears, could not finish the rehearsal. The instrument was a total loss.

Spray Makes Sure

By M. V. CHESNET

In a recent article I discussed sex in plants, pointing out that some kinds have separate male and female plants, some have separate male and female blossoms on the same plant, and some have both male and female organs in the one blossom. The tomato plant falls in the latter class — its sex life is not at all complicated.

With male and female organs in each blossom, pollination can be achieved by the transfer of pollen from the male anthers to the female stigma, just a fraction of an inch away. Given ideal conditions, the pollen may even fall from anther to stigma, without benefit of insects.

This being the case, it is hard to understand why it is so difficult to get the first clusters of blossoms to set. The latest clusters seem to make fruit fairly readily, but only too often the first blossoms are aborted — they dry up and fall to the ground leaving no little green tomatoes behind them.

I have never understood to my complete satisfaction why this should be so. Could be cool nights, poor weather conditions at the time of the first blossoms, a lack of vitality in the plant, or simply because the first clusters come along at a time when the plant is still in a state of shock after being transplanted to the open garden.

In any case, I can't see any point in leaving matters to chance. The thing to do is make absolutely sure those first blossoms turn themselves into tomatoes by spraying them with a fruit-setting hormone chemical. This causes seedless tomatoes to form even when atmosphere conditions are all against natural pollination.

Actually, I think it pays to use the stuff throughout the growing season, on every cluster of blossoms, early and late, as they come along. It is just plain good insurance, making sure tomatoes are pollinated. Besides, in my opinion the artificially-stimulated tomatoes make better eating than the naturally pollinated, with meatier, more solid flesh, fewer seeds and less watery pulp.

These tomato-setting sprays are not at all hard to come by — they are stocked by practically every shop or centre selling garden chemicals, and are sold under such names as Tomato-Fix, Blossom-Set, Seed-Less-Set and Fixit.

Nor are these sprays expensive. A one-ounce bottle of Seed-Less-Set costs 32 cents — this is enough to make a quart of spray. A bottle of 30 tablets of Tomato-Fix costs 65 cents, and this is about a 10-year supply for the average garden. An aerosol bomb of Fixit sells for $1.29 and a somewhat larger aerosol of Thompson's Tomato Fix costs $1.49.

Don't spray too soon but wait until every blossom in the cluster is fully open. Spray the blossoms only, not the whole plant, shooting at a slight upward angle so the spray hits the undersides of the blossoms as well as the centre organs. The little green tomatoes should stick to form within a week after spraying.

The aerosol bomb is the easiest and most convenient way to apply the spray as there is no fixing or filling to do — just push the button on top and you're in business. If you mix your own, though, you'll find the regular garden sprayer is far too big and clumsy — you can't spray the blossom clusters without wetting the whole plant. An old perfume atomizer works well, or a nasal spray, and a gardener of my acquaintance uses a little plastic squeeze bottle that originally contained an underarm deodorant spray!

ART BUCHWALD Suggests Viet Nam Switch

GIs Could Use Advisers

A recent dispatch from South Viet Nam reports that the American GIs are getting sore about the political strife in the cities and it's beginning to rub them that they have to do a lot of the fighting alone.

There was a time in the Viet Nam war when it was very rare for an American GI to see a Viet Cong soldier. But this has all changed. The American GI has seen all the Viet Cong he wants to, but it's very rare now for him to see a South Vietnamese soldier.

Two GIs were discussing this in the central highlands the other day.

"Remember the good old days," one of them said, "when we were their advisers."

"That was before my time," the other one replied. "Frankly I've never seen a South Vietnamese soldier. What do they look like?"

"It's been so long since I've seen them myself, but, as I remember, they look a lot like the Viet Cong, except of course they have American uniforms."

Charlie Baer was in Saigon recently and he said he saw some South Vietnamese soldiers. They were guarding Gen. Ky's palace. He said they looked first class.

"I heard they're great at fighting Buddhists."

"There's nothing like having highly trained troops on your side."

"There's a rumor going around that the South Vietnamese troops might soon be sent out of the cities to fight the Viet Cong."

"I heard that rumor before, but I doubt if there's anything to it. If they pull out of the cities who's going to guard the government?"

"Why couldn't we guard the government for a change and let the South Vietnamese fight the Viet Cong?"

"That would be interfering in the affairs of another country and we're not supposed to do that. But I did hear they're thinking of attaching a South Vietnamese soldier as an adviser with each American outfit — just to keep up our morale."

"That would be nice," the other soldier said. "What would he do?"

"He could explain to us what we're doing out here."

"Do you think it would help much?"

"It might. Let's say they sent out one adviser. He would probably ask for an assistant, and then the assistant would ask for a jeep and driver, and the driver of the jeep would ask for a machine gunner, and before you know it, we'd have a lot of South Vietnamese soldiers in the field."

"Do you believe it would work?"

"How do you think we got here? We started out with 20 advisers in all of South Viet Nam and now we have 285,000 soldiers. It would be great if we could do the same thing to them."

"I understand that the South Vietnamese are very anxious for us to lick the Viet Cong and they'll support us in anyway they can, short of widening the war."

"They say there are no atheists in foxholes in South Viet Nam," his friend said.

"There are no Buddhists, either."

"Well, I guess we'd better get started again. President Johnson says we're not only fighting for the South Vietnamese, but we're fighting for free people everywhere."

"Where are the free people fighting?"

"Damned if I know. They must be around here somewhere."

SYDNEY HARRIS

Corrects Falsity

One of the chief conceits of so-called "civilization" is that war and conflict were more prevalent in what we call "primitive" societies. But most anthropological research does not bear out this view.

Studies of primitive tribes, whether in Africa or among the North American Indians, indicate that only as the tribes advanced further into more "civilized" states did they relax their efforts at peace-keeping and intensify their warlike activities.

Indeed, most of the North American tribes had "peace chiefs" as well as "war chiefs." The peace chiefs engaged in elaborate ceremonies with other tribes to enable potential conflicts to be resolved amicably without loss of face on either side.

And these "primitives" were so psychologically shrewd that sometimes they arranged for the tribes to engage in mock battles, with the exchange of hostages, to drain away the hostility and release pent-up emotions without going through a real war.

The higher the level of civilization, the fewer provisions are made by society for resolving conflicts. Every modern nation has a department of war; none has a department of peace. As society becomes wealthier, stronger, and more technical, more of its resources are allocated to military preparations.

A good case could be made that the Johnson administration's decision to stay in Viet Nam — despite the rapidly deteriorating situation — is not based on military, political or moral considerations, but simply is an unwillingness to lose face there. Politicians, even more than most people, hate to admit they were wrong; phrases like "national honor" are often used as a camouflage for persisting in such tragic mistakes.

Methods of maintaining peace were part of the essential fabric of primitive societies, because it was realized even then that deterrence did not deter: tribes that prepared for war went to war, unless there was some means of turning off the war machinery and turning on the peace machinery. This is a lesson we seem to have lost in our advancing technological society.

For several years, we have been involved in "disarmament negotiations" in Geneva, but nobody pretends that these are much more than feeble efforts to strike a moral posture, while at the same time most of our energy and funds go into building the most powerful armament factory the world has ever known.

It is a ludicrously unequal contest between the "war chief" and the "peace chief" in our tribe — especially since no one knows who the peace chief is or what he is really doing.

Perhaps it is time we dropped the illusion of being "civilized," and restored some of those "primitive" methods of keeping our young men alive.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Broadway Play for Mia?

NEW YORK (NANA)—David Merrick won't stop, I'm told, until he lands Mia Farrow for a top role in We Have Always Lived in the Palace. He could get her, I am also told, if he would agree to a six-months-only contract. David is holding out for the run of the play. . . . Meanwhile, back in Beverly Hills, the friends of Frank Sinatra are glad that Frederick Weissman, the man in the brawl last week, is now expected to recover. While his enemies are predicting there will be a heavy suit for damages in the not-too-distant future.

If the wind is in the right direction when Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton give their poetry reading at the foot of the Acropolis next month in Greece, the words will be wafted to Melina Mercouri and her almost new husband, Jules Dassin, who have finally moved into their new apartment facing the famed ruin. The Dassin's also have a gorgeous home in Paris near the Bois de Boulogne. They have owned it for years, but whenever they are in Paris they stay in a hotel. Don't ask me why.

Tommy Steele in Hollywood to star for Walt Disney in The Happiest Millionaire wandered out to what he thought was a genuine southern plantation. But it turned out to be the Forest Lawn cemetery. . . . Lex Barker, a millionaire from the movies he has made in Europe, bought himself a status badge, a 53-foot-long yacht complete with captain and crew. Lex was the handsome Tarzan of the 40s. And he has come a long way since swinging from trees.

Elizabeth Taylor isn't the only good-lucker who has deliberately made herself look homely—for her epic, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Dirk Bogarde, a very handsome gent in real life, has gone all the way in Modesty Blaise, in a white wig with narrow see-through slits in his rectangular-shaped glasses, and just to be even more different, he carries different colored umbrellas, although it never rains in the picture.

Robert Cummings has always been his own advertisement for his health foods and pills. While starting with Bob Hope on a TV show, Cummings tried to convert Hope to his regime. Bob, a bit skeptical commented, "You certainly look younger than you are, but so does Cary Grant, and he's not a food faddist." "True," agreed Cummings, "but if Cary ate health foods he'd look young enough to play the son of Tony Curtis, instead of his brother. Actually, as you know, Cary is old enough to be Tony's father."

Dina Merrill called to say she is taking it easy at Easthampton, Long Island with her two vacationing schoolboy sons, an mulling several film and TV offers. I complimented her on her recent appearance on the Emmy show. You never change the style of your hair," I said, "and yet it always seems to be in fashion." To which, Dina replied, "I try to adapt the current styles to me." Most women do the opposite.

British comedian Norman Wisdom is making a film comedy in London that calls for him to dress up as a suffragette. The gals used to chain themselves to the railings at the House of Commons. Government permission to repeat was given on condition that the shooting take place between the hours of 5:30 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. "And no damage to the railings." To be on the safe side, fake railings were used.

'Don't Panic'—Dean

The death-of-God theology had opposed Hitler's militarism. In its roots in the writings of his book, The Cost of Discipleship, several important thinkers of the church took the contemporary church to task for being content to carry on its formal religion under the Nazi regime. He was imprisoned and finally hanged by the Nazis shortly before the end of the war. His Letters and Papers from Prison were collected and gave a vivid picture of the man.

Some of the phrases used are frankly bewildering to many ordinary people. Some traditional Christians contemptuously dismiss the whole movement. Beneath the self-contradictory phrases, an experience of real, contemporary people is trying inarticulately to find expression.

RELIGIOUS GENIUS

The dean said church people should neither panic at this new movement, nor disdainfully dismiss it.

He traced its roots to Søren Kierkegaard, Karl Barth, Rudolph Bultmann, Paul Tillich and Dietrich Bonhoeffer.

Kierkegaard, a tortured religious genius who lived in Copenhagen in the early 19th Century, "was in revolt against the snug, easygoing church people whom he saw all around him."

EXISTENTIALISM

Regarded as the father of modern existentialism, he believed that everyone must make up his mind for himself, or he is nothing. He taught that man may profess a correct creed and yet be miles away from any living contact with God.

Karl Barth, a young Swiss pastor, more than 50 years later tossed along Kierkegaard's teachings and himself revolted against the complacent idea that God is steadily leading the world upwards toward perfection.

Bultmann, a German, said that before man can properly translate the gospel message into modern terms, he must get rid of the old mythical elements. When they are cleared away, the heart and centre is found in the challenge of Christ to the individual person here and now.

SYMBOLS

Paul Tillich, a naturalised American theologian, believed that religion and the moral code are not ends in themselves but are empty symbols unless they put us into touch with ultimate reality.

Bonhoeffer, a German who was living in the U.S. at the outbreak of the Second World War, returned to Germany and threw in his lot with those who opposed Hitler's militarism. In his book, The Cost of Discipleship, several important thinkers of the church took the contemporary church to task for being content to carry on its formal religion under the Nazi regime. He was imprisoned and finally hanged by the Nazis shortly before the end of the war. His Letters and Papers from Prison were collected and gave a vivid picture of the man.

SUPPORT

He wrote that man is now adult and that religion must come to terms with this new situation. It must not look for support to the marvellous and the supernatural.

Dean Whitlow said these profoundly new ideas, which have been disturbing Christian thinkers during the past few generations, have filtered down to the level of many ordinary people, clergymen and others.

"These men are not original thinkers themselves, but they are intelligent enough to respond to the stimulation provided by the new ideas. Some of them, however, are not sufficiently grounded in the traditional faith to enable them to keep a proper balance. And so one gets the way-out statements which make the headlines."

He says there is no cause for alarm. The Holy Spirit is in the church.

"Always remember the text with which I began. I will pray for the Father and He shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, even the Spirit of truth."

U Thant Calls for Peace in Viet Nam

End 'Most Barbarous War'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant described the fighting in Viet Nam Monday as "one of the most barbarous wars in history" and he called for greater efforts to bring about a settlement.

"The longer we wait, the more difficult the situation becomes," he told the UN Correspondents' Association. "The situation is very urgent, very critical."

The secretary-general said he has made no new recent proposals to settle the Vietnamese crisis. He added, however, that his three-point plan for ending the conflict still is applicable.

They are:
● A cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.
● A scaling down of all military activity in Viet Nam.
● A willingness by "all sides" actually participating in the fighting to enter into discussions.

De Gaulle Predicts:

France, Russia Will Lead Way

MOSCOW (Reuters) — French President Charles de Gaulle called Monday night for France and Russia to join together to break the "harmful spell" of rigid confrontation between East and West.

At the start of an historic 12-day visit, he said the two countries stood at the threshold of a "great opportunity" for working together towards European unity and security.

So long as Europe failed to move towards ending the continent's "sterile divisions," it is for France and Russia to start "doing it together from now on."

take to the road of union and the world that of equilibrium, progress and peace."

The French leader spoke at a lavish Kremlin banquet four hours after he drove through Moscow streets to a cheering but restrained welcome from several hundred thousand Russians waving paper French and Russian flags.

Rebels Appeal For Aid

SAIGON (AP) — Embattled South Vietnamese Buddhist leaders, blockaded in a Saigon pagoda compound, appealed to the Red Cross Monday for help in a health situation they described as critical.

They reported one Buddhist had caught cholera, but the military government claimed a hospital examination showed no such symptoms.

PRESSURE FIRM
The Ky government, while maintaining firm pressures on the weakening Buddhist opposition, announced formally its plans for a national election in the fall to choose a constituent assembly and made official its intention to stay in power well into 1967.

It also eased its curfew on Vietnamese in Saigon and U.S. military authorities followed suit by relaxing restrictions on U.S. servicemen in the capital.

CURFEW TIGHT
A tight curfew had been imposed when Buddhists began a series of anti-government demonstrations that on numerous occasions erupted into violence on Saigon streets. In many cases, the demonstrations had strong anti-American overtones.

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—A U.S. Marine attack bomber crashed in flames in a residential area in the vacation suburb of Buckroe Beach here Monday night, after colliding with another military jet.

Hampton police said eight persons were killed and 45 others injured, some seriously, as the plane cut a swath through the area of modest two-bedroom, frame homes. Seventeen homes were demolished or damaged.

All the dead were occupants of houses in a development several blocks from a shopping centre—an area of two-bedroom homes some 2½ miles from the bay shore.

MARINES RESCUED
The four marines aboard the A-6 Intruder jets ejected from their aircraft and, along with one of the planes, came down in the bay near Norfolk. All were rescued.

Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said the attack bombers—A-6 Intruder jets—were on a flight from their base at Cherry Point, N.C. to Patuxent River, Md.

There was a tremendous explosion as one of the planes, trailing flames, thundered to earth in the residential area of two-bedroom homes near the Fordham shopping centre.

The aircraft apparently disintegrated as it fell. A wheel plunged through the roof of a bowling alley and injured three persons inside.

So great was the concussion when the attack bomber plunged into the housing development that goods were knocked from the shelves of a drugstore three or four blocks from the scene.

The fire from the plane apparently set a gas main ablaze. Three of the marines rescued in the Chesapeake Bay were rescued by coast guard helicopter. The other was picked up by a private boat.

Handlers' Strike Grows

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike of freight handlers employed by the CNR and CPR spread Monday and paralyzed all movement of freight between waterfront sheds and railway cars.

BETTER RATES
The fallout began a day after 3,500 longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec City returned to work following a 39-day strike.

The men demand new contract provisions which would guarantee payment of time-and-a-half rates after 7 p.m. weekdays and Saturday and double time Sunday.

Wilson Hints Communists Prolong Seamen's Strike

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson strongly hinted Monday that Communist elements in the seamen's union are prolonging the British shipping strike in hope of damaging the country's economy. The strike is in its sixth week.

In a strongly worded statement to Parliament, Wilson didn't use the word Communist, but he spoke of "a tightly knit group of politically motivated men"—a reference London newspapers quickly took as meaning the Communists.

He said: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had their effect."

"They are endangering both the economy and the interests of the union."

Prospectors Found Safe

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — Two prospectors who attempted to hike out of dense bush and muskeg country after the helicopter they were riding in crashed June 14, were picked up Monday. A para-rescue team found Andy Moisey of Edmonton and Dick Wallingham of Mayo, Y.T. "walking and apparently in good condition."

Wilson told the Commons that emergency plans are being made to use RAF transport planes, if necessary, to deliver important export shipments to North America and Western Europe.

He also was ready to use the RAF to carry mail to Northern Ireland and the Royal Navy to get supplies to outlying islands heavily dependent on coastal shipping.

But the effects of the strike had not been as great "as some had possibly hoped."

Talks Here Today

Solution Hunted In Ferry Dispute

The big question of what will happen next in the B.C. Ferries labor dispute was still unanswered Monday night, but moves were being made to bring some order to a confused situation.

Leaders of the employees will meet in Victoria this afternoon, and a spokesman said they were hopeful that further talks "to alleviate the situation" would be held with Attorney-General Bonner, chairman of a

Wilson followed his statement by summoning union leader William Hogart, who is believed to be a moderate, to a meeting at 10 Downing Street.

Of the union executive he said: "My doubt is how far they are their own masters in taking decisions."

But support for the executive's stand came in from votes by seamen at six major ports, Southampton, Liverpool, Manchester, South Shields, Hull and Glasgow.

Loggers Fight Slash Blaze

CRANBROOK (CP)—Loggers are attempting to control a fire burning through some 40 acres of slash in the Moyie Lake area, about 25 miles southwest of Cranbrook in eastern B.C.

Canada, Russia Sign New Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sold 336,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia on a three-year contract for $200,000,000 cash, Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday.

No intergovernmental credit arrangements are involved in the new sales, but Canada and the U.S.S.R. have extended their basic general agreement for another three years.

The trade agreement provides that the two countries accord each other "most favored nations" tariff treatment. That is, they agree to charge no higher rate of duty on imports from another country than they accord each other.

THIRD RENEWAL
The trade agreement runs to April 17, 1969, and is subject to further renewal by mutual consent. It is the third renewal of an agreement first entered into nine years ago.

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian wheat board will ship about 12,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour during the next crop year which begins Aug. 1.

"This is the largest three-year commercial contract for a fixed quantity of Canadian wheat and flour ever concluded," Mr. Sharp said.

FULL APPROVAL
All sides of the Commons applauded the announcement.

Russia has bought 478,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada since 1963. All sales have been for cash on delivery. Some short-term credits have been given by the government for sales to East European countries.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons: "The impact of this record sale and the assurance it gives for the marketing of Canadian wheat and flour will extend throughout Canada and will be felt not only by wheat farmers and millers, but by grain handlers, longshoremen, elevator companies, railways, shipping companies and the economy generally."

Under a protocol to the new basic trade agreement, Canada and Russia also agreed to facilitate the exchange of visits for business purposes.

Life of Ups, Downs

Home Winnie Loved Public Show

WESTERHAM, England (AP) Winston Churchill once told his youngest daughter, Mary, that every day away from Chartwell was a wasted day.

Wednesday, the Kentish home he loved above any other corner of England becomes a public show. Thousands will tramp its velvety lawns, peep into the rooms he lived in, gaze at the towering wall he built with his own hands.

For Chartwell Manor has become the stuff of history and the world claims a right to see it.

Chartwell was bought in 1922 — "the year I was born," recalls Mary, wife of Conservative politician Christopher Soames. She was brought up at Chartwell and her three children were born there.

"Father fell in love with this valley in 1921," she said. "The house was small, poky, surrounded by laurels and full of stained glass. It was in a bad state, too."

"Mother didn't think much of it. In fact, she didn't really like it at all. But a year later father bought it. It was two years before we could move in, because he had started building."
"This was his home uninterrupted from 1924 until the Second World War. During the war years it was too dangerous — too near Biggin Hill fighter airfield — and he was mainly at Chequers (the official prime minister's residence). From 1945 he lived here again until just a few months before his death."

Life had its ups and downs at Chartwell, Churchill's daughter said. During her father's years

Thrifty Housewives Battling as CRAGs

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — "If you are paying more and getting less, join C.R.A.G.S." is the slogan and the invitation of the newly-formed Consumers Research and Action Group, organized last week in the Alberni Valley.

About 50 interested persons turned up at the second meeting of the consumers group, out of about 60 who left their telephone numbers with organizer Mrs. Valerie Hill following the first meeting.

An executive was elected, with Mrs. Hill as chairman. Secretary is Mrs. Helen Clark. A three-woman publicity committee consists of Mrs. Marion Enger, Mrs. Mavis Sinister and Mrs. Del Foy, while Mrs. Pat Kokura and Mrs. Nettie Kokura form the action committee, with Mrs. Nettie Kokura as chairman of the action squad.

Reporting on the meeting, the publicity chairman, Mrs. Enger, pointed out that the group intends to do a good deal of research, as well as a good deal of public education.

"We need a broad program to educate the buying public," Mrs. Enger said. "people should know what gimmicks cost them. We would like to publish a flyer or brochure with tips for shoppers, if we can."

One of the biggest problems, of course, is the matter of finances. It would cost money to put out a brochure which would give shopping hints and information. Among ideas to be projected to shoppers is the suggestion they allow sufficient time to shop.

By law, weights and quantities must be shown but it often takes time to find it in the fine print, CRAG members have found. Weights should be checked, since the size of the carton is sometimes no indication of the contents, they have discovered.

Pre-packaged items sometimes should be weighed, especially in the case of potatoes in paper shopping bags, they feel. Potatoes priced at five or 10 pounds for a certain sum are often offered in this type of bag and the unwary shopper often assumes that five or 10 pounds is what the bag contains, on reaching the checkout counter, she may find the bag contains considerably more, and the cost rises proportionately.

"It's not that you are not getting what you pay for, but that the packaging is misleading," Mrs. Enger explained. "The shopper may feel she is getting a good buy by looking at the size of the shopping bag, and then find she is overpaid at the cash desk."

Women are not the only ones who could benefit by joining CRAG's. The men might well take a look into gasoline giveaways and gimmicks, tire "bargains" and other items most often on their shopping lists, too, the group pointed out.

At the moment, expenses for the group have been almost nonexistent but means of financing the project will be one of the first items considered when the new executive meets shortly.

Meantime, dozens of comparison shopping sheets are out in the valley and through friends and relatives, prices are being determined across B.C., and other parts of Canada.

When the sheets are returned to CRAG headquarters, the information will be correlated, and the group has promised the results will be published so the first definite step can be taken in deciding whether prices here are higher than elsewhere, or whether everyone is caught in a Trans-Canada price rise that is turning the food budget into a major family problem for all wage groups.

Eagle Pole Installed At Nanaimo

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — A handsome totem pole at the north end of the Pearson Bridge was dedicated in a colorful ceremony by Vancouver Island Indians Saturday.

The pole is part of a B.C. centennial project to mark the route of the ancient Haida from Victoria to Prince Rupert.

BEAR REQUESTED

The totem pole features an eagle on top, the bird who showed the Indians the benefit of salmon as a food in time of shortage.

The eagle is supported by a bear, a sign of strength, and the animal requested on all the poles by the provincial government.

Carver of the pole was Cedar resident, Jimmy John, and he led off the ceremonies with a welcome song.

Well known dancers present included George Chutesi from Port Alberni, Chief Hummingbird Leonard Paul from Saanich, and Bill Seward from Nanaimo.

Master of ceremonies was Frank Ney, chairman of Nanaimo's centennial committee, and he introduced Mayor Pete Maffeo and Laurie Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee and deputy provincial secretary.

Junk Yard Protest

Nanaimo Women Studying Building Safety Features

NANAIMO — Alterations to the city building code, most of them aimed at high rises, will be studied by delegates to the local Council of Women.

Driver Jailed Three Months

LADYSMITH — Charged with impaired driving and driving while suspended, Floyd Clarence Tommy, 23, of Duncan defaulted payment of fines totalling $375 and was sentenced to three months imprisonment. He was arrested June 17 at Ladysmith.

Monday afternoon, resolutions chairman Mrs. Robert Creighton, introduced a motion calling for the city to re-assess its code to include incorporation of hooks outside windows for safety belts for window cleaners, elevators, large enough for a stretcher and two attendants and proper automatic fire sprinklers.

The council, made up of 26 affiliated women's organizations, will study the proposals and vote on them at their next meeting in September.

Other resolutions introduced by Mrs. Creighton were a plea for another amendment to the city's building code, making it mandatory for all public buildings to be easily accessible to the handicapped.

This would include consideration being given to entrances, elevators, width of aisles and other structural barriers.

Mrs. Creighton and her committee also want to take up the cause of bringing back 20 mph school speed zones in rural areas.

Their resolution, if accepted, calls for a meeting with trustees of the improvement districts of Harewood, Departure Bay, Cedar, Cassidy, Northfield, and North, South and East Wellington, suggesting adding "20" to the school signs now in existence.

On the provincial scene, the committee wants the government to pass legislation to get rid of unsightly junk yards and scrap car lots, and the Women's and Girls' Protection Act amended so that employers will have to supply transportation home for girls under 21 who work after 11 p.m.

As a means of raising Nanaimo's assessment for the Lady Aberdeen Library to be established at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Mrs. Creighton suggested a tea should be held in the fall.

BOOTHS — Booths would be set up demonstrating the work of each affiliate in the community. A decision on this suggestion was also left until the next meeting.

Reporting on the National Council of Women convention held at St. John's, New Brunswick at the beginning of the month, council president Mrs. Betty St. Jean, said two Nanaimo members had been elected to the position of chairmen of national committees.

Mrs. Robert Creighton is chairman of arts and letters, and Mrs. N. T. Bennett chairman of Health.

New Indian Group Considering Politics

By KLAUS MUENTNER

DUNCAN — An historic, far-reaching decision was made last week by Indians of North British Columbia and the Yukon, when they formed the Klondike Indian Association at a meeting at Whitehorse.

Community planning officer with the Cowichan Indian Band, George Manuel, of the Indian affairs branch here, said he had been invited to help organize the new group.

Mr. Manuel, originally from the Shushwap band of Chase, is a former president of the North American Indian Brotherhood. He said, "On the third day of deliberations some 30 Indian leaders from 11 bands representing more than 3,000 Indians formed the new association and elected Gordon Frank as president."

Mr. George said the 20-year-old head of the Klondike

Indian Association is a high school graduate and son of the chief of the Thlathin Band. The young president is a commercial pilot with Great Northern Airways.

The association's vice-president is Frank Sidney, hereditary chief of the interior Tlingits of Teslin and Mrs. Annie Dragas of White Horse is secretary-treasurer.

Mr. George said the association covers an area from Pisquit Lake and Telegraph Creek in the south to Old Crow, beyond the Arctic Circle in the north.

The vast territory has a greater percentage of Indian people in the total population than anywhere else in Canada.

Mr. George said: "Words of support reached the gathering at Whitehorse from Indian communities in many parts of Canada and several Indian people from distant provinces attended at the request of the northern Indians."

He stated, said the new president, Mr. Frank, hinted the new association may run a candidate for territorial council in the next election because at least one territorial riding has a majority of Indian electors.

Mr. Manuel said the northern Indians are still living in a traditional clan system.

He said they prefer to live in communities rather than on reserves and many of them make a living from trapping and hunting.

Mr. Manuel said: "If a young man wants to get a job he has to leave his community and travel large distances and many young Indians have moved to white communities such as Whitehorse."

He said: "I told the northern Indians they have many intelligent people among them to obtain their goal for a better livelihood.

"I stressed unity in unity can they find strength."

Mr. Manuel said to round out the historic event at Whitehorse well known young Indian folk singer Alania Abomawim of the Odnac band, Que., joined Yukon Indian people in presenting a variety show.

Duncan Unionist Says:

Strike Not Set Up By IWA's Heads

By KLAUS MUENTNER

DUNCAN — "Union officials did not engineer behind the scenes the unexpected strike of lumber workers in the Local 1-80, IWA area. On the contrary, we worked day and night to keep the men on the job," said first vice-president of Local 1-80 Fernie Viala.

His comments followed a union meeting at the Duncan Curling Rink Sunday morning, which was attended by more than 3,000 members who heard local president Weldon Jubenville's report on contract negotiations.

The meeting was closed to the press.

Originally scheduled to be held at the Odeon Theatre which was filled to capacity long before the meeting started, the crowd was moved to the curling rink.

Mr. Viala said there was no vote taken at the meeting whether to go back to work or not, but men from Hillier's Lumber Company and B.C. Forest Products, Youbou, Millan Bloedel failed to work.

Following an emergency meeting with IWA officials of Local 1-85, Sproat Lake crews agreed to return to work today, and await the report of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

A statement issued by MacMillan Bloedel said the Sproat Lake employees refused to leave the marshalling point Monday morning, demanding a change in the hours of work after a dispute over travel time.

The company did not agree because travel time is one of the issues at dispute in contract negotiations and the men were returned to their homes in company buses.

Walter Allen, president of the Local 1-85, said almost the entire Sproat Lake crew of 300 men turned up at the emergency meeting at 2 p.m. Monday in the IWA Hall.

He said: "The content of that report will decide the length of the strike."

"We sincerely hope the report is of a nature which is acceptable to all parties concerned."

Mr. Viala, referring to the unexpected walkout of thousands of woodworkers along B.C.'s West Coast, said, "We quickly analyzed and a vote will be taken immediately."

He said: "The content of that report will decide the length of the strike."

"We sincerely hope the report is of a nature which is acceptable to all parties concerned."

Mr. Viala, referring to the unexpected walkout of thousands of woodworkers along B.C.'s West Coast, said, "We started negotiations in March and in the middle of June the industry came out with a ridiculous offer. Then the labor department announced Mr. Justice Nemetz would be given all the time necessary to write his report and that fanned the flame.

"Bearing in mind that this was after the contract deadline (June 14) the members naturally became very dissatisfied."

Union Officials Persuade 300 Back to Work

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — It was touch and go for a time here Monday as IWA workers learned crews of the Sproat Lake logging division of MacMillan Bloedel failed to work.

Following an emergency meeting with IWA officials of Local 1-85, Sproat Lake crews agreed to return to work today, and await the report of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

Operations at Alberni Plywood and Alberni Pacific Division of MacMillan Bloedel, where more than 1,000 men are employed, have continued without interruption.

Committee Answer To Labor Trouble

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — The present collective bargaining system is out of date, Rev. Bill Hills, Qualicum Beach, told 130 guests at the 77th annual installation of the Chamber of Commerce here Saturday night.

"I'm convinced they'll have to set up committees or commissions to see justice is done on both sides of the fence," he said.

"While a settlement may satisfy the demands of labor and management, it is the poor consumer and citizen who is caught in this mish-mash."

ANGER

Rev. Hills maintained labor and management sit down at the bargaining table with a bit of anger on both sides.

Labor is afraid of automation, while management is saying to itself, "here they are, they've got the gun at our heads again."

He favored the policy of the worker having a share in the company to get rid of the idea the man at the end of the machine is just a number on a pay envelope.

Jailed Longshoremen 'Priceless Publicity'

PORT ALBERNI — "The took the course of civil disobedience to protest what they termed 'an unjust law'."

Decision to ask the Queen for clemency was made by delegates to a special convention of the B.C. Federation of Labor, who complained that virtually all injunctions applied for by employers involved in labor disputes with unions in the past 10 years were granted, while most union requests for injunctions against employers were rejected.

In Ottawa, New Democratic MP's asked Labor Minister Nicholson Monday to speed up his study of labor legislation that spells out holidays with pay.

The president of the Alberni Valley local of the Longshoremen's Union is one of 10 men imprisoned for contempt of court.

PUBLICITY — Queries among local longshoremen showed that while some were at a loss to understand what the executives were trying to prove by taking the jail term instead of the fine, others felt "priceless publicity will place our problems in front of the public."

From Vancouver, a direct appeal is being sent to Queen Elizabeth to grant a Royal Pardon to the 10 officials of the Longshoremen's Union, who close to serve three-month jail terms rather than pay fines totalling $4,100 for contempt of court.

PROTEST — The convictions arose from the officials' failure to obey an injunction ordering them to countermand any instructions for a work stoppage on Victoria Day.

Fishermen Protest

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has sent telegrams to Attorney General Bonner and Federal Justice Minister Carlin protesting Mr. Justice Verchere's decision which sent ten Longshoremen to jail for three months.

The wires stated that the men were being jailed "... for upholding the basic freedom of their membership to refuse to work on statutory holidays."

U.F.A.W.U. officers cite the fact that Longshoremen work under Federal Labour Laws while the contempt proceedings were initiated by the Attorney General Robert Bonner.

$95,000 Garage Planned at Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Application for rezoning property on the 1st and Highway south of Princess Anne's school for a $95,000 service station and car dealership was made to city council Monday night.

The application, made by Luke Francour of Nanaimo, was referred to council in committee.

LEASE — Providing the provincial government will state in writing it is willing to take over mortgage payments, the city will lease land to the Lions Club at Exhibition Park.

The club wants to build a group home for retarded children and Lion Ken Medland said the provincial government sees the project as an experiment to help solve the retarded problem in B.C.

He said his club is itching to get going and has raised $7,000 so far.

A meeting will be set up between Nanaimo Mariners' Club, the Harbor Commission and council to investigate the delay in building a seamen's recreation centre here.

The centre was being sponsored by the British Sailors' Society but support was withdrawn for the time being because shipping has dropped off in the harbor.

DONATION —

Ald. Jack Parker said there is no reason to panic, "we can't keep on breaking records, we've just come through a very prosperous period."

A donation of $2,500 was made to the Nanaimo and District Ambulance Society toward the purchase of a new vehicle.

U Thant Calls for Peace in Viet Nam

'Most Barbarous War'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant described the fighting in Viet Nam Monday as "one of the most barbarous wars in history" and he called for greater efforts to bring about a settlement.

"The longer we wait, the more difficult the situation becomes," he told the UN Correspondents' Association. "The situation is very urgent, very critical."

The secretary-general said he has made no new recent proposals to settle the Vietnamese crisis. He added, however, that his three-point plan for ending the conflict still is applicable.

They are:

- A cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.
- A scaling down of all military activity in Viet Nam.
- A willingness by "all sides" actually participating in the fighting to enter into discussions.

"These steps alone can create conditions conducive to a peaceful solution of the Viet Nam problem," Thant said. "They still are as applicable today as they were six months ago."

Turning to other topics, the secretary-general said he believes the United States and the Soviet Union soon will reach an agreement on procedures for the banning of the use of the moon and other celestial bodies for military purposes.

FRANCE ASKS RED EXCHANGE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — French President Charles de Gaulle called Monday night for France and Russia to join together to break the "harmful spell" of rigid confrontation between East and West.

At the start of an historic 12-day visit, he said the two countries stood at the threshold of a "great opportunity" for working together towards European unity and security.

So long as Europe failed to move towards ending the continent's "sterile divisions," it is for France and Russia to start "doing it together from now on."

More co-operation between them should help Europe "to take to the road of union and the world that of equilibrium, progress and peace."

The French leader spoke at a lavish Kremlin banquet four hours after he drove through Moscow streets to a cheering but restrained welcome from several hundred thousand Russians waving paper French and Russian flags.

Rebels Appeal For Aid

SAIGON (AP) — Embattled South Vietnamese Buddhist leaders, blockaded in a Saigon pagoda compound, appealed to the Red Cross Monday for help in a health situation they described as critical.

They reported one Buddhist had caught cholera, but the military government claimed a hospital examination showed no such symptoms.

PRESSURE FIRM

The Ky government, while maintaining firm pressures on the weakening Buddhist opposition, announced formally its plans for a national election in the fall to choose a constituent assembly and made official its intention to stay in power well into 1967.

CURFEW TIGHT

A tight curfew had been imposed when Buddhists began a series of anti-government demonstrations that on numerous occasions erupted into violence on Saigon streets. In many cases, the demonstrations had strong anti-American overtones.

In the war, U.S. Coast Guard cutters intercepted and seized a blockade-running trawler. A U.S. spokesman said it was Continued on Page 2

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—A U.S. Marine attack bomber crashed in flames in a residential area in the vacation suburb of Buckroe Beach here Monday night after colliding with another military jet.

Hampton police said eight persons were killed and 45 others injured, some seriously, as the plane cut a swath through the area of modest two-bedroom, frame homes. Seventeen homes were demolished or damaged.

All the dead were occupants of houses in a development several blocks from a shopping centre—an area of two-bedroom homes some 2½ miles from the bay shore.

MARINES RESCUED

The four marines aboard the A-6 Intruder jets ejected from their aircraft and, along with one of the planes, came down in the bay near Norfolk. All were rescued.

Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said the attack bombers—A-6 Intruder jets—were on a flight from their base at Cherry Point, N.C., to Patuxent River, Md.

There was a tremendous explosion as one of the planes, trailing flames, thundered to earth in the residential area of two-bedroom homes near the Fordham shopping centre.

THROUGH ROOF

The aircraft apparently disintegrated as it fell. A wheel plunged through the roof of a bowling alley and injured three persons inside.

So great was the concussion when the attack bomber plunged into the housing development that goods were knocked from the shelves of a drugstore three or four blocks from the scene.

The fire from the plane apparently set a gas main ablaze.

Three of the marines rescued in the Chesapeake Bay were rescued by coast guard helicopter. The other was picked up by a private boat.

King's Jet In Trouble

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) —King Feisal of Saudi Arabia left here for the United States Monday night on a chartered airliner after his Saudi-Arabian Boeing jet was forced to land in Lisbon with engine trouble.

Handlers Strike Grows

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike of freight handlers employed by the CNR and CPR agreed Monday and paralyzed all movement of freight between water, front sheds and railway cars.

BETTER RATES

The walkout began a day after 3,500 longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec City returned to work following a 39-day strike.

The men demand new contract provisions which would guarantee payment of time-and-a-half rates after 7 p.m. weekdays and Saturday and double time Sunday.

Wilson Hints Communists Prolong Seamen's Strike

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson strongly hinted Monday that Communist elements in the seamen's union are prolonging the British shipping strike in hope of damaging the country's economy. The strike is in its sixth week.

In a strongly worded statement to Parliament, Wilson didn't use the word Communist, but he spoke of "a tightly knit group of politically motivated men"—a reference London newspapers quickly took as meaning the Communists.

He said: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had their effect."

"They are endangering both the economy and the interests of the union."

Wilson told the Commons that emergency plans are being made to use RAF transport planes, if necessary, to deliver important export shipments to North America and Western Europe.

He also was ready to use the RAF to carry mail to Northern Ireland and the Royal Navy to get supplies to outlying islands heavily dependent on coastal shipping.

But the effects of the strike had not been as great "as some had possibly hoped."

Wilson followed his statement by summoning union leader William Hogart, who is believed to be a moderate, to a meeting at 10 Downing Street.

Of the union executive he said: "My doubt is how far they are their own masters in taking decisions."

But support for the executive's stand came in from votes by seamen at six major ports, Southampton, Liverpool, Manchester, South Shields, Hull and Glasgow.

Talks Here Today

Solution Hunted In Ferry Dispute

The big question of what will happen next in the B.C. Ferries labor dispute was still unanswered Monday night, but moves were being made to bring some order to a confused situation.

Leaders of the employees will meet in Victoria this afternoon, and a spokesman said they were hopeful that further talks "to alleviate the situation" would be held with Attorney-General Bonner, chairman of a special cabinet committee set up to deal with the dispute.

The employees are represented by the B.C. Ferry Authority Employees' Association.

Meanwhile, an organization spokesman said no sudden walkout was expected.

"Undoubtedly, our executive council will elect to notify the public well in advance, if any action is to be taken."

"Certainly our intention is not to inconvenience the public."

Prospectors Found Safe

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — Two prospectors who attempted to hike out of a remote bush and mining country after the helicopter they were riding in crashed June 14, were picked up Monday. A para-rescue team found Andy Halsey of Edmonton and Dick Wallinghouse of May, Y.T., "walking and apparently in good condition."

Canada, Russia Sign New Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sold 336,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia on a three-year contract for $800,000,000 cash. Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday.

No intergovernmental credit arrangements are involved in the new sales, but Canada and the U.S.S.R. have extended their basic general agreement for another three years.

The trade agreement provides that the two countries accord each other "most favored nations" tariff treatment. That is, they agree to charge no higher rate of duty on imports from another country than they accord each other.

THIRD RENEWAL

The trade agreement runs to April 17, 1969, and is subject to further renewal by mutual consent. It is the third renewal of an agreement first entered into nine years ago.

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian wheat board will ship about 112,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour during the next crop year which begins Aug. 1.

"This is the largest three-year commercial contract for a fixed quantity of Canadian wheat and flour ever concluded," Mr. Sharp said.

FULL APPROVAL

All sides of the Commons applauded the announcement.

Russia has bought 478,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada since 1963. All sales have been for cash on delivery. Some short-term credits have been given by the government for sales to East European countries.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons: "The impact of this record sale and the assurance it gives for the marketing of Canadian wheat and flour will extend throughout Canada and will be felt not only by wheat farmers and millers, but by grain handlers, longshoremen, elevator companies, railways, shipping companies and the economy generally."

Under a protocol to the new basic trade agreement, Canada and Russia also agreed to facilitate the exchange of visits for business purposes.

Life of Ups, Downs

Home Winnie Loved Public Show

WESTERHAM, England (AP) —Winston Churchill once told his youngest daughter, Mary, that every day away from Chartwell was a wasted day.

Wednesday, the Kentish home he loved above any other corner of England becomes a public show. Thousands will tramp its velvety lawns, peep into the rooms he lived in, gaze at the towering wall he built with his own hands.

For Chartwell Manor has become the stuff of history and the world claims a right to see it.

Chartwell was bought in 1922 — "the year I was born," recalls Mary, wife of Conservative politician Christopher Soames. She was brought up at Chartwell and her three children were born there.

"Father fell in love with this valley in 1921," she said. "The house was small, poky, surrounded by laurels and full of stained glass. It was in a bad state, too."

"Mother didn't think much of it. In fact, she didn't really like it at all. But a year later father bought it. It was two years before we could move in, because he had started building."

"This was his home uninterrupted from 1924 until the Second World War. During the war years it was too dangerous — too near Biggin Hill fighter airfield — and he was mainly at Chequers (the official prime minister's residence). From 1945 he lived here against until just a few months before his death."

IWA Situation Stays Confused Despite Meetings

Despite union meetings held at the weekend, woodworkers on Vancouver Island have not come to any common agreement on whether they would return to work or not and the labor picture remains confused, with some working and some still on strike.

● In Victoria, the only woodworkers on strike—200 at Victoria Plywood Ltd.—returned to work at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

● In Port Alberni, if 300 men return to work today at MacMillan Bloedel's Spruce Lake operation, then all IWA members of Local 1-85 will be back at work.

● At Lake Cowichan the IWA has an unofficial strike headquarters in the Elks Hall and all major logging and mill operations are shut down.

● At Duncan, after a mass meeting Sunday, men from Hillcrest Lumber Company and B.C. Forest Products, Youbou, decided they would not go back to work.

IWA workers at other plants in the Duncan area were undecided on whether to work or not.

● In the Campbell River area, 130 loggers at Camp Five went out on strike when a dispute arose over marshalling points and a portal-to-portal pay dispute.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan local, 1-80, is in Vancouver at emergency meetings of the IWA's negotiating committee.

A report from Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, who was appointed industrial conciliator in the dispute between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., which negotiates for 120 companies, will be handed down "as expeditiously as possible," the justice said Monday.

Despite the confused situation, Mr. Justice Nemetz said he would not ask for an extension in the time allowed for bringing in his report.
